Tokyo Report Says U.S. "Mechanized Forces" in Battle

PEARL HARBOR, Feb. 18.—One of the greatest carrier task forces ever assembled in any ocean was believed today to have blasted a trail of sinking ships, wrecked planes and devastated shore installations through Truk, Japan's "Pearl Harbor", in a mighty assault only a little more than 2,000 miles south of Tokyo.

(Japan finally acknowledged the attack at 1:40 a.m., M.D.T., today in a communique reporting that carrier-based planes "raided our positions on the Truk Islands since yesterday (Wednesday) morning." It added that "fierce fighting is now going on between our forces and the enemy.")

(Washington reports said powerful elements of the Japanese fleet, probably including battleships, were believed to have been caught in the attack. Vice-Admiral John S. McCain, deputy chief of naval operations for air, expressed confidence that the raid would prove "memorable in our country's history.")

GREAT DAMAGE LIKELY

The task force resumed radio silence after flashing word that it had begun the assault Wednesday dawn, but Admiral Chester N. Nimitz's announcement that "several hundred" dive bombers, torpedo bombers and fighters were participating was taken as a certain indication that heavy damage was inflicted on Japan's biggest base outside home waters.

(The Tokyo radio said today, "powerful mechanized units as well as airpower" had been used in the American attack on Truk. "Fighting with our troops is now going on," a broadcast added.

(There was no explanation of what Tokyo meant by "mechanized forces" and nothing from any other source to support the implication that American ground forces might have attempted a landing.

(The Chungking radio, also heard by U.S. government monitors, said the Japanese radio had announced

Balfour Charter Solemn Pledge To World Jewry

Stating that the Balfour Declaration of 1917, the charter under which the Jewish national home in Palestine was established, was a solemn pledge to world Jewry, the Rev. Dr. Harry J. Stern, Montreal, on Friday demanded the implementation of that pledge by Britain, and the 52 sovereign nations, signatories to the Palestine mandate, through the nullification of the White Paper of 1939. He also urged that Palestine again be opened as a home of refuge for the countless thousands of Jews who may escape from the ruthless persecutions of the dictator nations.

Dr. Stern, who is Rabbi of Temple Emanuel, Montreal, spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club at the Macdonald hotel. He was introduced by E. W. S. Kane, K.C., president of the club, and Rev. R. M. Thompson, minister of Metropolitan United Church, conveyed the thanks of the club to the speaker at the conclusion of his address. Seated at the head table were: His Honor, Lt.-Gov. J. C. Bowen, Mr. Kane, and Mr. Thompson, John Dower, Hugh C. Gourlay, and the speaker.

Dr. Stern also demanded that an honest effort be made to rescue those Jews who can still be saved

Roosevelt Vetoes Anti-Subsidy Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today vetoed the anti-subsidy bill and the House of Representatives promptly sustained the veto by a vote of 151 to 226.

A two-thirds majority was required to override the veto. The vote was 226 to override the president to 151 against.

The president said in his veto message that the legislation was "an inflation measure, a high cost of living measure, a food shortage measure."

The subsidy repealer was attached as a rider to a bill extending the life of the Commodity Corporation, which expired yesterday. Speaker Sam Rayburn (Dem.-Tex.) said the corporation would be continued by new legislation.

The legislation proposed to end government subsidy payments for food after June 30.

Fifth Army Kills Hundreds Of Germans in Beachhead

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, Feb. 18.—Allied land and air forces chopped down attacking German shock troops by the hundreds on the Anzio beachhead today, as front dispatches indicated that American troops in the Cassino sector had launched an assault to break open the Nazis' southern front.

Covered by the greatest aerial concentration ever thrown into action over Italy, British and American infantry littered the beachhead with enemy dead, holding stubbornly to every foot of their line.

Allied tanks and tank destroyers backed up the foot soldiers closely, meeting and smashing every German armored thrust, while the big field guns of the 5th army spewed tons of high explosives into the enemy rear lines.

NAZI ADMISSION

(A German high command communique, tacitly admitting that the Nazi offensive had not yet broken into the Allied beachhead, said "stubborn fighting" was continuing there. It admitted that American troops had penetrated the German lines around Cassino, but said they had been driven back by German counter-attacks.)

(The Axis-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau in Stockholm quoted German front correspondents as saying that the battle of the beachhead had developed to the point where it "almost overshadowed" the Russian front.

(The Allies are able continuously

Churchill Govt. Nominee Loses In By-Election

LONDON, Feb. 18—(CP)—Alderman Charles White, Independent Socialist, today won the West Derbyshire by-election, defeating the Marquess of Hartington, the government's candidate, by a majority of 4,611 votes.

Polling in the rural constituency took place yesterday and the results were announced today as follows: White, 16,336; Lord Hartington, Conservative, 11,775; Robert Goodall, Agriculturalist, 233.

The house of commons vacancy was caused by the retirement of Lt. Col. H. Hunloke, an uncle of Lord Hartington. In the last by-election in the district, in 1939, Col. Hunloke defeated Alderman White by a majority of 5,524.

Another by-election, vote of which was also announced today, resulted in a government victory, with T. F. Hubbard, Labor candidate and former miner, winning the Kirkcaldy, Scotland contest to fill a vacancy caused by the retirement of Tom Kennedy, former Labor whip.

While White's victory in West Derbyshire was not unexpected—he had been favored in pre-voting odds at 5 to 4—the defeat of Lord Hartington, heir to the Duke of Devonshire and future head of the Cavendish family, was a blow to the Churchill government. The prime minister himself entered the fight with letters of support and encouragement written to Lord Hartington.

By capturing the house of commons seat, White repeated the victory of the shoe-maker father a quarter-century ago. The elder White also defeated a member of the Cavendish family, breaking a hold that the family had on the seat for nearly three centuries.

NEW DELHI, Feb. 18.—British ground forces supported by R.A.F. dive-bombers and fighters, have made further progress in breaking out of a Japanese trap in the Arakan sector of western Burma, a communique disclosed today.

The British, virtually encircled in the jungles some 60 miles north of Akyab, pushed back Japanese lines at several points Wednesday and their situation has shown "definite improvement," the communique said.

Indian troops battling to clear the Japanese from the east end of the Ngakyedauk pass leading across the Mayu range, inflicted heavy casualties.

R.A.F. planes pounded continually at Japanese lines, while bombers attacked enemy airfields and supply centres in eastern and northern Burma.

American planes also were in action over northern Burma Wednesday.

Born in Vancouver, Garvey was formerly a sports writer on the staff of the Vancouver Daily Province.

1943 Income Tax Balance Must Be Paid by April 30

OTTAWA, Feb. 18—(CP)—A national revenue department spokesman said last night that no extension beyond the April 30 deadline will be permitted for payment of the balance of 1943 income taxes.

He said the table of tax deductions at the source provides for collection of 95 per cent. of taxes due, but that this works out at a little less than 95 per cent. of the taxes payable by taxpayers in the higher salary brackets.

Consequently, they may have a balance of from five to 10 per cent. of taxes to pay by April 30.

Higher Pensions Are Considered

VICTORIA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—The Dominion government is considering increasing old age pensions to $425 annually and British Columbia pensioners who get a cost-of-living bonus from the provincial government then would receive $485 each year, Provincial Secretary Pearson told the legislature yesterday.

Mr. Pearson, also labor minister, was the last speaker before the house adopted the reply to the throne speech.

The minister introduced amendments to the male and female minimum wage acts which would make it compulsory for employers to give a detailed accounting of pay cheque deductions along with details of hours of work and overtime.

In his address Mr. Pearson contended the socialism preached by the C.C.F. is merely a fetish and if the C.C.F. ever formed a government, it would introduce socialist principles only little by little.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The German army today acknowledged the loss of Staraya Russa, turntable base of the northern front below Lake Ilmen, in a smashing reverse closely following the capture or killing of 83,000 Nazi troops encircled in the Ukraine.

The Berlin radio reported that Staraya Russa and its bristling system of hedgehog fortifications, one of the most formidable on the eastern front, had been evacuated in a major retreat described characteristically as a "shortening of the front."

At the same time the Nazi propagandists, seeking to ease the blow of the Ukrainian disaster, denied a Soviet announcement that the German army trapped west of Cherkasi had been annihilated.

CLAIM TRAP OPENED

The German high command, reporting the loss of Staraya Russa and claiming the jaws of the Ukrainian trap had been pried open, said the Red Army yesterday opened a major offensive near Krivoi Rog and particularly bitter fighting was in progress where the Russians wedged into the German positions southeast of the Dnieper bend town.

Significantly admitting the Ukrainian entrapment for the first time two weeks after the fact, Berlin claimed that Gen. Fritz von Mannstein had re-established communication with the enveloped Nazis whom Premier Josef Stalin had reported wiped

Progress Slow

More Research Work Planned On Tar Sands

The Alberta government is not happy over the progress of testing and other operations in connection with McMurray oil sand development, Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, stated in the Legislature Thursday.

He told the House that more research work is being planned in connection with development of the oil sands, in the course of a review of the provincial oil situation, which covered development of the Turner Valley oil field and measures to be introduced to enforce conservation of natural gas in that field.

UNDER DR. K. A. CLARK

Mr. Tanner, who is chairman of the Alberta Research Council, said the increased research work into the McMurray sands would be under the direction of Dr. K. A. Clark, of the University of Alberta.

Dr. Clark has had much experience in testing and separation of the oil sands, the minister stated, and he said that information the government obtains from research work would be obtainable to companies which experience difficulties in their operations.

The government, "not happy over the progress or lack of progress" that is being made in regard to pilot plant testing and other operations of the tar sands, has asked the Dominion to relieve Alberta of an agreement

"The vice-president says you'll be re-elected in 1944," a reporter remarked. "Do you think he's a very good prophet?"

The president retorted: "At it again."

"He's not so sure himself, Mr. President," another newsman chipped in.

"Keep on going, it's all right," Mr. Roosevelt replied, "it's good for a laugh any time."

Partisans Drive Into North Italy

LONDON, Feb. 18—(CP)—Yugoslav Partisan forces have stabbed across the Slovene border into Northern Italy and now are battling the Germans just south of the First Great War battlefield of Caporetto, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

A communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio said units of the 30th Patriot division had crossed the Isonzo river between Gorizia and Tolmino, and occupied the right bank of the stream. Jitter fighting is in progress, the bulletin said.

Tolmino is 10 miles southeast of Caporetto and Gorizia is 20 miles further downstream.

The communique also reported continued heavy fighting between German and Partisan forces in the Croat province of Zagorje between Ludberg and Koprivilica.

Compulsory Call-Up System Being Allowed to "Die Out" Member Claims in House

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Howard Green (P.C., Vancouver South) said last night in the Commons that the compulsory army call-up system is being allowed to "die out."

Loss of call-up troops through desertions had been 1,500 during the first nine months of the present fiscal year in a total call-up "wastage" of 11,000, Mr. Green said. Only 12,000 were to be called in 1944-45 against 25,000 in the present fiscal year.

Defence Minister Ralston had said the army of call-up men would be on a "maintenance basis," with little likelihood more than 50,000 would be available in future for service overseas if this became necessary, although 50,000 could be made available now.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 18.—Allied airmen who intercepted a Japanese convoy attempting to supply and reinforce beleaguered enemy forces in the Bismarck archipelago destroyed or severely damaged six of the ships and may have wrecked the entire convoy, dispatches indicated today.

Heavy and medium bombers caught the convoy off Mussau islands, in the St. Matthia group off northern New Ireland and, in a running battle Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, blasted five freighters, totalling 18,500 tons, and an escorting destroyer.

A communique said Allied planes "are continuing the attack," and a spokesman added that while reports of the battle were fragmentary, "possibly all the ships were sunk." The size of the convoy was not given.

Court Refuses Dismiss Suit Against Actor

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18—(AP)—Joan Berry's counsel withdrew yesterday from her paternity suit against Charles Chaplin and a few hours earlier an attempt by the actor's lawyer to have it dismissed was refused by a Superior court judge.

Declaring Miss Berry's counsel should be given written notice of intention to move for dismissal, Judge William S. Baird denied a motion by Loyd Wright based on a stipulation that the case would be dropped if a blood test failed to indicate Chaplin's parentage of the girl's four-month-old child.

FORCED TO AGREE

In a letter to Mrs. Gertrude Berry, Joan's mother and the guardian ad litem of the baby, Carol Ann, Attorney John J. Irwin said that as one of the signers of the stipulation, he had to agree to dismissal of the action, since the blood test had indicated that Chaplain was not the child's father. He asked to be relieved of further responsibility in the matter.

Irwin wrote that the result of the blood test "In no way disturbs my confidence in Joan's sincerity."

Police Judge Charles J. Griffin of Beverly Hills, one of six persons indicted with Chaplin last week on a federal charge of conspiracy to deprive Miss Berry of her constitutional rights, surrendered yesterday and was finger-printed.

to lay down a drumfire against areas where German troop movements are expected," the agency said. Every point where a German position is suspected is fired on an literally ground to pieces.")

NO SLACKENING

As the second battle of the Anzio beachhead roared into its third day, the German onslaught showed no signs of slackening. The wearied Nazis, battered incessantly by a storm of bombs and shells, threw themselves again and again at the Allied lines, heedless of their swiftly-mounting losses.

After 58 hours of the bitterest fighting of the Italian campaign, the German attack unfolded as an all-out blow to split the British-American lines along the Aprilia-Anzio road and break the beachhead in two.

Official reports said the Nazis threw as many as 7,000 men in a single sector, often with 35 heavy tanks leading the way.

But the British and Americans, fighting from improvised trenches half-filled irrigation ditches and farmhouses, rose to meet every assault and held fast to their forward positions.

HEAVY AIR ATTACKS

Allied airpower again maintained its crushing superiority over the entire front, however, and, in more than two flaming hours yesterday, delivered the most devastating bombardment of the entire Italian campaign.

Flying some 1,500 sorties, planes of every description lashed the Nazis from end to end of the beachhead.

R.A.F. and Canadian Wellingtons played a major role in the smashing air operations and this morning were reported continuing their all-out support of the ground troops.

Poles Again Seek Soviet Agreement

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(CP)—New compromise proposals looking toward an agreement with Russia have been drafted by the Polish government in London and have been sent to Foreign Secretary Eden for transmission to Moscow, probably with a letter from Prime Minister Churchill, it was learned yesterday.

A qualified informant said the proposals would "make some concessions," but expressed a doubt that they would prove acceptable to Premier Stalin. No details were disclosed, however.

The London News Chronicle quoted what it described as "unassailable sources" as saying Russia would listen to no outside suggestions for modifying the Russian-Polish frontier as Moscow now defines it.

"Everything up to the German-Russian frontier line of 1939 is to Moscow now as much a part of the U.S.S.R. as Moscow itself," the paper said these sources added. "Nothing can alter that."

Ralston Reports Disease Decline In Armed Forces

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Resources of all three armed services have been used "as a team" in combatting venereal disease, Defence Minister Ralston said last night in the Commons.

He reported the incidence of venereal disease in the army in 1942 was 38 per 1,000 and in 1943 it dropped to 32 per 1,000.

"That may not appear a very important reduction," he said, "but I am advised by our medical men that it is a very significant reduction."

It was the result of the work done in combatting disease during the past year, and of a determined attempt to stamp out diseases which caused more loss of man-days than any other.

that "strong motorized Japanese forces and Japanese troops are involved in fierce and continuing action opposing American forces which landed on Truk."

(This was about eight hours after Tokyo's first broadcast acknowledgement of the action.)

("This present attack by the enemy is not the real thing, and it seems that it does not go beyond the scope of a strong reconnaissance," said the overseas dispatch broadcast by Domei agency and recorded by the United States foreign broadcast intelligence service.

NAVY "BIDING TIME"

"The main force of our invincible navy is biding time until the very end, and, co-ordinating it with the supply difficulties that will increase in proportion to the distance of the enemy's advance, is now looking for the golden opportunity to destroy the enemy at one stroke."

(NBC quoted the Tokyo radio as saying Japanese "army and navy units are engaged in fierce fighting" with American "concentrations at Truk.")

Reconnaissance photographs taken by two marine Liberator bombers on Feb. 4 in the first Allied flight ever made over Truk showed at least 25 warships, including two aircraft carriers, numerous lighter warships and supply ships, in the huge lagoon.

Though Nimitz's communique referred only to the "commencement" of the attack, there was no confirmation that it continued for more than one day at the longest. It also was doubted here that the bombing and strafing raids were supplemented by any naval bombardment, since such action would bring the task force dangerously close to coastal batteries.

OBJECTIVE NOT CLEAR

The assault touched off speculation as to whether an attempt to seize Truk was contemplated, but there was no information here, official or otherwise, as to whether the raid was a prelude to invasion.

The huge American task force under Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, under whose command Kwapalein atoll in the Marshalls was wrested from the Japanese nearly two weeks ago, penetrated 3,200 miles west of Pearl harbor into the heart of Japan's mandated Caroline islands for the attack.

It carried the war to a base Japan long has considered impregnable, 2,100 miles east of Manila and 940 miles west of the nearest American base at newly-conquered Kwajalein.

MANY SHIPS IN LAGOON

Carrier task forces normally approach within 100 miles and often much closer before launching their planes. Their targets at Truk lay on a group of 70 islands protected by a great encircling reef with a radius of 30 miles, inside of which the whole Japanese fleet could anchor.

The photographs brought back by the two marine Liberators that flew 2,000 miles over enemy waters from a south Pacific base showed huge ship concentrations in the lagoon, one island almost literally covered with airfields, heavy coastal guns on all five major islands and palatial living quarters.

A pilot of one of the Liberators, indicated that even more than the 25 ships reported by official sources were anchored at Truk.

"I counted 2? warships through one small gap in the clouds," he said. "It looked like a whole Japanese fleet was down there and I saw only a part of one of the anchorages."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told reporters today he lacked late reports about the American attack on Truk, the Japanese mid-Pacific stronghold, and added he knew nothing of reports that American forces had gone ashore there.

Alberta Flier, R.A.F. Officer Crash Victims

KENTVILLE, N.S., Feb. 18—(CP)—A Canadian pilot officer from Alberta and an R.A.F. flying officer were killed yesterday when a twin-engined aircraft from the nearby Greenwood R.A.F. station crashed in a bog about five miles from the airport.

Observers said the plane came down fast over the village of Auburn and the pilot evidently struggled to keep it aloft until it passed over the houses. One engine dropped out but the plane crashed some 600 feet farther on.

Next-of-kin have been notified and names will be issued shortly.

M.P. Declares Call-Up System Is "Dying Out"

untary system of enlistment entails," said Mr. Green.

Col. Ralston interjected that he had never made any statement which would justify an opinion the call-up system was being allowed to die.

Mr. Green said some N.R.M.A. men had gone to Kiska with a task force last year. These men had returned to Canada. Some Americans who also had gone to Kiska now were fighting in the Marshall Islands.

Col. Ralston had said Canada had made no commitments with regard to the war against Japan, Mr. Green said.

"I never said that," interjected Col. Ralston. "I said no commitments have been made as to the nature and extent of our operations against Japan."

ALLIES CLOSING IN

Mr. Green said the United Nations were closing in on Japan, and Canada could not wait until the war in Europe was over before she took some action against Japan. Men who returned to Canada after the war in Europe would not be "very keen" on being sent on to fight in the Pacific.

Some N.R.M.A. units had volunteered to fight the Japanese, Mr. Green said.

If the government continued its present policy no N.R.M.A. men would be sent to Europe. The government should consider making them available to fight the Japanese.

Col. Ralston said Canada, as a Pacific power, would remain in the war against Japan until victory was won. But he said he could make no statement on military plans.

READY FOR EMERGENCY

N.R.M.A. units on the Pacific coast were ready for any emergency, and for defence of the Pacific coast. They were a backlog of reinforcements for overseas if the need arose. They were training to be useful wherever they were needed.

"They're trained already," said Mr. Green.

"My friend seems to know more about the army than I do," said Col. Ralston. "A soldier is never finished training."

Col. Ralston said the N.R.M.A. army was not going out of sight. It would have from 60,000 to 70,000 men next year. The army, both general service and call-up, now was on a maintenance basis, in that only reinforcements and replacements were required.

12,000 BEING CALLED

The 12,000 men being called up in the coming fiscal year would relieve general service personnel. They would be used for duties for which they were trained and to which it was decided to put them. The minister expressed belief the demands of essential industry for men probably would be less rather than larger as Mr. Green had suggested.

Vincent Dupuis (L-Chambly-Rouville) said that any man who desired to serve overseas still had only to volunteer if he were in the N.R.M.A. Army.

U.S. 9th Air Force Is Now in Britain

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Maj.-Gen. Lewis H. Brereton's Ninth U.S. Air Force, which supported the R.A.F. in the British drive across the African desert from El Alamein to Cap Bon, was preparing today to play a similar role in the invasion of western Europe.

The Ninth moved from Africa to England several months ago to give the United States two complete air forces in the British Isles and its Marauder medium bombers and Mustang fighters already have struck blows over Europe.

Brereton has been named commander of the American tactical air force to support the invasion, supreme headquarters of the Allied evxpeditionary force announced. His commanders are virtually the same as those of the old Ninth, which long had operated in the Middle East.

Maj. Gen. William O. Butler, another of the few American generals with experience in combined operations, has been appointed deputy to Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, air commander-in-chief for the invasion, it was announced.

Regrets Canadian Stand on "Policies"

BRISTOL, Eng., Feb. 18.—(CP)—Sir Alfred Beit, M.P., voicing support of recent proposals for greater co-ordination of the Empire's foreign and defence policies, told a meeting here yesterday that "I regret Canada's attitude but recognize her special position."

British interference in this matter, he said, is "out of the question," but he added, "I agree that if there would be one thing worse than coercion of the one by the many, it would be obstruction of the many by the one."

Sir Alfred has been Conservative member of parliament for St. Pancras Southeast since 1931. He is a director of Rhodesia Railways, Limited.

He suggested that the dominions absorb Europeans as well as Britons after the war. Britain alone could not provide the great populations the dominions need for a policy of economic expansion made a number of years ago regarding the tar sands, said Mr. Tanner.

This agreement specified that a reservation should be made in the McMurray area, and it has the effect of barring claims from being filed in certain areas.

Mr. Tanner said that he understood a McMurray company is planning to do development work on the tar sands this year, and later, he mentioned that one of the difficulties faced by a plant in the area was that it was too large to change from one kind of separation to another.

REQUESTED TO HELP

The minister told the Legislature that since the war had begun, the province had been asked to help in the production of oil from the northern tar sands. The government had received a letter from the Dominion department of munitions and supply, which said that if Alberta would place a reservation on all the lands in the area, the Dominion government would carry on a search for oil.

The late Premier Aberhart had agreed to this request, but he stipulated that an exception would have to be made in the case of the International Bitumen Company, which was operating a plant in the tar sand area. This was agreed to, but Alberta was dissatisfied with progress being made, Mr. Tanner declared.

Great Damage Indicated At Japanese Base

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—(AP)—Strong indications that great damage is being inflicted on the Japanese at Truk came last night from Vice Admiral John S. McCain, United States chief of naval operations.

McCain said in a statement prepared for a broadcast that current necessity of maintaining radio silence until the battle is over made it impossible to provide any details of the assault on the strongest enemy base in the South Pacific.

"But," he continued, "I feel sure that when the details are given out, you will count today a memorable day in our country's history.

"The fact that Truk is Japan's greatest naval base promises a day memorable also to that enemy which must hang onto much of its stolen property by sea lanes."

Winnipeg Urged As North America Aerial Capital

WINNIPEG, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Maj.-Gen. H. D. B. Ketchen (Opp., Winnipeg), yesterday urged Manitoba to capitalize on publicity it has received which is aimed to make Winnipeg the air capital of the North American continent.

Speaking in the debate in reply to the throne speech in the Manitoba legislature Gen. Ketchen expressed regret that no mention of post-war air transportation had been made in the throne speech.

"Manitoba's geographical position will bring Winnipeg prominently into the future picture when national and international consideration may decide where air centres are to be located," he said, adding that proper and adequate facilities will have to be provided.

United Australia Party Withdraws From War Council

CANBERRA, Feb. 18—(CP)—The United Australia Party decided today to withdraw its members from the advisory war council in protest against Prime Minister Curtin's refusal to dismiss Edward Ward, minister of transport and external affairs.

This will involve the resignation of opposition leader Robert Menzies and the party's deputy leader, William Hughes, and Percy Spender from the council. The Country Party decided to continue its membership.

The House of Representatives yesterday voted down Menzies' motion demanding the removal of Ward after the latter denied charges he made a statement termed "offensive" to the United Nations.

Red Army Kills, Captures Huge German Force

out with the slaughter of 52,000 men and capture of 11,000 more, as well as the killing of 20,000 more in relief attempts.

The loss of Staraya Russa, keystone of the German defences on a 200-mile front between Lake Ilmen and Vitebsk, all but completed the collapse of the Nazi line in the north, the upper end of which was wrecked by the Red Army's Leningrad offensive carrying into Estonia and to the approaches of Pskov.

NAZI "EXPLANATION"

The Nazis said that "In order to shorten the front systematically and gain further operational reserves, the locality of Staraya Russa was evacuated last night by German troops."

All military installations in the heavily-fortified area below Lake Ilmen were destroyed, Berlin reported, and the Staraya Russa garrison with all its heavy equipment was "Able to disengage itself toward new positions prepared long ago without the Soviets being able to interfere."

Staraya Russa had defied the best efforts of the Red Rrmy since the first phase of the war in the East. The Russians once cut off an entire German army in that sector, but so firmly was it entrenched that they were unable to carry through their intended battle of annihilation.

HAD BEEN BY-PASSED

The stronghold 135 miles south of Leningrad and 110 miles east of Pskov had been by-passed by the Red Army drive on the northern front. The Soviet push to the environs of Pskov left Staraya Russa dangling in peril at the nose of a tottering salient, in effect making it untenable.

Its fall laid open the way for a Russian push westward from the vital rail hub toward the Dno Junction on the trunk line to Pskov.

Definite Dominion Highway Scheme To Be Considered

REGINA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—A definite policy of participation by the Dominion government in provincial highway construction after the war will be one of the matters under consideration at the coming Dominion-provincial conference a delegation of prairie highway ministers was advised earlier this week when it met representatives of the federal cabinet.

Establishment by the federal government of a basis of contribution to post-war road building in the provinces was only one of many recommendations that would have to be examined at the conference to be held in the near future, it was pointed out to the delegation. Hon. A. T. Procter, minister of highways in Saskatchewan was a member of the delegation. He returned to Regina Thursday.

from the hell of Europe. He said that the announcement by President Roosevelt that a rescue board had been established, had been received with joy throughout the democracies, and he expressed the hope that Canada would find it possible to join in this work of saving human lives.

He demanded that the growth of the Jewish community in Palestine be not impeded, and that the national homelessness of the Jew be at last ended, and that the Jewish nation become a partner with the other United Nations.

He declared that the White Paper of 1939, which at the end of March this year, will result in the doors of Palestine being shut to further Jewish immigration was a remnant of appeasement left over from 1939, and that its policy was a shattering blow to the Jews, who had proved faithful allies of Great Britain and the United Nations, and a sop to the Arab world which, until German defeat appeared inevitable, was definitely pro-Axis in viewpoint.

In addition, Dr. Stern said, the white paper is nullification of the sacred pledge made in the Balfour Declaration in the last war, a nullification in direct opposition to the merited reputation of the British for justice and fair play.

CONCRETE RESULTS

Dr. Stern said there were two concrete results from the Great War, the formation of Soviet Russia, and the establishment of a national home for Jews in Palestine. The pledge to facilitate such an establishment was signed by 52 sovereign nations, and the Arabs looked upon the project with favor as a means of revitalizing the Near East.

Since 1919 the Jews have flocked to Palestine from all over the world, and had converted the desert into a garden. In 1919 there were 50,000 Jews in Palestine, now there are 600,000. They have industrialized the country, electrified the Jordan, raised the standard of living for Jew and non Jew alike, and through their initiative and creativeness have returned Palestine to a land of milk and honey after 1,300 years of neglect.

When war broke out Palestine became the arsenal for the democracies in the Near East; 30,000 Palestine Jews enlisted and fought with Montgomery's forces in Egypt and the Jewish people threw themselves into the war effort heart and soul, Dr. Stern stated.

General Kirsch, a Jew of Palestine, organized the entire supply line for the 8th Army and finally gave his life in the cause of democracy right at the gates of Bizerte.

"This is not the story of the Arabs. They, for the most part were pro-Axis. Egypt refused to lift a finger for the British, or even for herself. The Mufti of Jerusalem, and other officials are at present in Berlin broadcasting for the Axis nations. In Britain's darkest hour the Jews stood firm as a faithful ally," Dr. Stern continued.

He said that the hope of the White Paper was to appease the Arab world, but now that we see the result of that attempt at appeasement we Jews call upon the democracies to cancel the White paper which is a breach of the solemn pledge given to World Jewry.

"We appeal that the doors of Palestine be left open so that for all time the homelessness of the Jew will be ended, so that this land may be a refuge for the countless thousands of Jews now suffering under the yoke of the dictator nations," he said.

He pleaded that the Christian conscience be awakened to the Jewish tragedy and that Christians concern themselves in the work of rescuing the victims of Nazi oppression and bring them to the historic home of Palestine pledged to them by Britain and affirmed by 52 sovereign nations. He said the Jews appreciated those Christian leaders who have come to the fore to espouse the cause of Jewish Palestine so that once and for all Jewish homelessness can be ended and that the curse of anti-Semitism can be banished from the earth.

Bulgaria Sends New Envoys to Finland, Hungary

ISTANBUL, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Bulgarian cabinet, after three days of almost continuous sessions, announced yesterday the appointment of new ministers to Finland and Hungary with orders to proceed to their posts immediately and keep the government informed "of the evolution of the situation."

The anxiety of the Bulgars for close contact with Finland and Hungary was interpreted in Turkey as another indication of the quickening of interest in the possibility of Bulgaria getting out of the war.

At the same time the government called up the class of 1924 for mobilization March 1.

TRAVELS 1,800 MILES TO FIND CASE HOPELESS

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Hazel Belbin learned in four minutes yesterday that her 1,800-mile journey from Moose Jaw, Sask., was in vain. Her sight cannot be restored.

Miss Belbin, 25, blind since the age of eight, came to New York in the hope that Dr. Ramon Castroviejo, noted eye specialist, could restore her sight. But at the examination yesterday at Columbia-Presbyterian medical centre she heard Dr. Castroviejo say tersely: "The condition is not favorable for an operation."

Dr. Castroviejo, however, held out to the Moose Jaw girl one faint ray of hope. He told her that the present war work with blinded soldiers may yield a new process that may apply to her case. He promised to let her know if such a possibility develops.

Hint Compromise On Finnish Peace

By JACK FLEISCHER

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 18—An editorial in a Swedish communist newspaper, believed inspired by Soviet quarters, indicated today that Russia may be willing to make peace with Finland without demanding the Finns' unconditional surrender.

Official quarters maintained silence regarding Finnish peace feelers which brought former Premier Juho K. Paasikivi to Stockholm, but it was indicated that any negotiations which may be going on might last for many days before there are any results—positive or negative.

There was an increasing belief in well-informed circles that emphasis of the discussions is along the lines of an armistice rather than a final peace.

(A Basle dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Tribune de Geneve—obviously inspired by Berlin—hinted that Paasikivi also was acting for the German foreign office, presenting the conditions on which Germany would be willing to stop fighting, the Exchange Telegraph reported from Zurich. The Swiss newspaper emphasized its refusal to accept responsibility for the correctness of the report.)

Seven Navy Planes Lost in Crashes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A series of widely separated accidents in the general vicinity of Washington took a toll of seven navy planes and an undetermined number of lives yesterday.

Two persons were killed and four injured in one crash involving a twin-engined transport near Gaithersburg, Md.

Three of a squadron of six, the navy said, crashed near Montross, Va., a fourth came down near Quantico, Va. The two other ships in the squadron landed safely.

In other accidents, apparently unrelated, a plane crashed at Elkins, W. Va., and another at Millington, Md.

Navy officials in Washington said the number of personnel involved was not known.

Ban on Dispatches Direct From Anzio Zone Is Protested

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The ban on direct filing of press dispatches from the Anzio beachhead in Italy brought a protest yesterday from Elmer Davis, war information director, who declared the public "is entitled to the fullest and most rapid supply of news consistent with military security."

The immediate inclination of military authorities here, however, apparently was to back up formally the decision of the commanders on the spot.

Stimson's press conference was held before Davis had lodged his views with the war department. Speaking with reporters, the war information director expressed confidence his agency's protestations would have some influence.

ment, will go a long way toward meeting the demands of organized labor for a satisfactory labor code and I feel the government deserves credit for its action.

EFFORTS APPRECIATED

One of the privileges labor unions appreciate most highly, and for the maintenance of which the free peoples of the world are fighting, is the right to criticize a government when its policies or actions are considered objectionable; but it would be unfair if it failed to be equally outspoken in commending any government for what appears to be a sincere effort to promote good relations between workers and employers.

In view of the difficulties which were inevitable in handling the unprecedented problems involved in legislation of this character, it is scarcely to be expected that there will be entire satisfaction at the outset.

But I believe the government has done a good job in the circumstances and I do not hesitate to congratulate most heartily both the government and its officers who were responsible for drafting the regulations.

War Bill Debate

Claims Quebec Enlistments Up to Par Despite "Jibes" By Members of Opposition

By JAMES McCOOK

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—W. R. McDonald, Liberal member of parliament for Pontiac—a Quebec riding with a population 75 per cent French-Canadian—said yesterday in the Commons that Quebec enlistments are on a par with the rest of Canada in spite of "jibes" by opposition members in the house.

Speaking in continued debate on the $3,650,000,000 war appropriation resolution, Mr. McDonald said four Quebec counties, including his own, are included in Military District No. 3 (Kingston, Ont.), and that enlistments in them are apparently credited to Ontario instead of Quebec.

"Figures lie, and liars use figures," Mr. McDonald said as he spoke of enlistments in his own district as a reply to those who claimed enlistments were lower in Quebec than elsewhere.

WANTS INFORMATION

J. F. Pouliot (L-Temiscouata) said the house should be told whether Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton had "resigned" on a matter of principle as Canadian army commander overseas. If he had left the command only because of illness, "it is a very sad event, but it is the desperation of one man only," Mr. Pouliot said.

Mr. McDonald quoted a letter from a French-Canadian airman, Sgt. F. G. Maheu, the son of Mrs. Maurice Maheu of Arthabaska, Que., who had been presumed killed in a flight over Italy. The sergeant said that if he were killed he would have given his all for those he loved and his country.

"I would ask the members of the Bloc Populaire to take particular note of this: that the only thought of this young French-Canadian in serving in the air force was to give his life for this country," said Mr. McDonald.

NO "ALTERNATIVE"

Clarence Gillis (C.C.F.-Cape Breton South) said that under a 1941 order-in-council Munitions Minister Howe had been given wide power to requisition troops from the defence minister if he anticipated disturbance. It appeared as if the defence minister had no alternative but to give the troops when they were requested.

Col. Ralston said the munitions minister was in the best position to assess the situation and determine whether it was necessary to have troops to check a disturbance which might interfere with war production.

Mr. Gillis said that if the authority of the munitions minister were continued it might be used "for other purposes" than protection of war production. The order should be reviewed.

Maxime Raymond, Bloc Populaire leader, protested against the calling of farmers for a second army medical examination particularly when they had originally been classified category "E." It was a waste of farmers' time and of public money.

SAID GOOD THING

Col. Ralston said call-ups were handled by the labor department, but he knew re-examinations were a good thing. In the first instance men called up were examined by civilian doctors. Later it was decided to have them re-examined by boards of doctors familiar with army requirements.

Without any reflection on civilian doctors, it had been found there were many cases in which the classification had to be changed. In Manitoba, out of 21,000 men rejected by civilian doctors, 700 were found to be physically fit on re-examination. It was about the same in all provinces.

Canadian Seamen In Action When Scharnhorst Sunk

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—When warships of the Royal Navy cornered the German battle cruiser Scharnhorst Dec. 26, three young Canadian seamen were in the thick of the 10-hour action which saw her sent to the bottom.

The three, part of a complement of some 80 Canadians serving in H.M.S. Sheffield, a cruiser which was one of the first to engage Scharnhorst, were Able Seamen Joe Leclair, 20, Charlottetown, P.E.I.; Pat Cooke, 22, Victoria, and Earl MacDonald, 21, of Dartmouth, N.S.

Cooke said the Scharnhorst was sighted the morning of Dec. 26, and the cruisers Sheffield, Norfolk and Belfast, all opened fire, two of them registering direct hits.

Members Protest Stoppage Of Dependents' Allowances When Men Reported A.W.L.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Several House of Commons members suggested in debate last night that the dependents of a man in the army should not suffer by losing their allowances if he goes absent without leave, but Defence Minister Ralston said he could give no assurance existing regulations would be altered.

G. K. Fraser (P.C.—Peterborough West) and Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (Unity—North Battleford) said dependents' allowances should be continued until the end of the war even if the soldier is A.W.O.L.

G. J. Tustin (P.C.—Prince Edward-Lennox) said there were cases of men who had disappeared in the United Kingdom who might have been killed in the blitz but who were listed as absent without leave and whose dependents had suffered.

POSSIBLE BLITZ VICTIMS

F. D. Shaw (N.D.—Red Deer) said if a man with the army in the United Kingdom had been missing for some time it should be assumed he had been lost in the blitz, since the chances were he would have been discovered if he were a deserter.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, said he never could understand why a soldier's wife should be made to suffer for her husband's offense.

Col. Ralston replied that the theory of dependents' allowances was not to compensate the wife because her husband was away but to promote the well-being of the man and relieve his anxiety about his dependents.

Discipline would have little effect if a man had no worry about his family. He might be deterred from desertion or other offence by feeling his family would be affected.

"I wish I could say the suggestions would be favorably considered, but there is a tendency to break down discipline when the family is aided in these cases," the minister said.

TO STUDY QUESTION

He promised, however, to look into the matter to see if anything further could be done.

Maj. Leslie Mutch (L., Winnipeg South) said an "archaic" system of pay deductions contributed to delinquency in the army. After a soldier was absent without leave he lost his pay for the time he was absent. That was all right. It was also sound to stop his pay for the period he underwent detention in punishment.

But often soldiers were fined and the fines were deducted from pay. That left them very little and they were tempted to commit some other crime, such as selling a pair of boots or some buttter to get money. The result was to make it hard for a man who has transgressed once to rehabilitate himself.

There were financial penalties imposed which were out of all reason, said Maj. Mutch. He cited the case of a man who was required to pay back $1,300 allegedly fraudulently obtained in dependents' allowance for a common-law wife.

Col. Ralston said some representations on changes in regulations relating to the cnarging of assigned pay to soldiers who have been absent without leave are being considered.

CONSIDER AMENDMENT

Answering C. E. Johnson (N.D., Bow River) Col. Ralston said "We have under consideration now an amendment which will make less restrictive the definition of a totally incapacitated husband."

He was referring to the provision that a mother who has a husband cannot get dependent's allowance unless the husband is totally incapacitated and unable to support his wife.

Mr. Johnson expressed belief that where a husband earns a small sum, such as $5 a month, the wife should not be barred from getting the allowance.

Victor Quelch (Ind.-Acadia) said Col. Ralston did not make a good case for stoppage of dependents' allowances when a man went A.W.L. It made it appear the wife was held hostage for her husband.

When a man was in detention the allowance was stopped after six months, for the army had the body of the soldier and could use him for sufficient work to cover the allowance.

DEDUCTIONS MADE

When a soldier's wife entered a tuberculosis sanatorium a deduction of $20 a month was made from the allowance and paid to the institution. In Alberta such treatment was free but federal authorities had held the amount should be paid, and finally suggested the province might collect the money and send it to the soldier's wife. It was strange a soldier's wife should be the only person required to pay in Alberta.

Col. Ralston said he had asked the dependents' allowance board to work out some better system in respect to such cases.

Sound Leadership Held Essential to Good Government

WINNIPEG, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Ralph S. Misener of Winnipeg, provisional chairman of the Bracken Clubs of Canada (named for John Bracken, national Progressive Conservative leader), organized here Tuesday, said in a statement last night "We are convinced that sound leadership is essential to good government, and there is at present a lack of competent leadership in public life."

"It will be one of the purposes of the Bracken Clubs to develop from the people themselves the type of leaders who will be needed to guide the nation during the long and troublesome period of reconstruction which will follow the war," the statement said.

Jottings From House Session

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. — (CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon said in a reply tabled today in the commons "it is understood that the greater proportion" of Canadian beer shipped to the United States is transshipped elsewhere for the use of the fighting forces.

Replying to a question by Flt.-Lt. James Sinclair (L-Vancouver North), Mr. MacKinnon said 2,322,108 gallons of Canadian beer were exported to the United States in 1943.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said in a tabled reply that Canada's beef-cattle population in 1943 was 5,870,500, compared with 4,601,000 in 1939—an increase of 1,269,400 head. Dairy cattle population, at 3,794,700 in 1943 against 3,873,500 for 1939, decreased 78,800 head.

No beef cattle were sent to the United Sattes in 1943, but 36,944 head of dairy cattle were sent there, compared with 9,044 in 1939.

Transport Minister Michaud, tabling a reply to A. H. Bence (PC-Saskatoon City), said there were 753 Canadian National and Canadian Pacific grain cars at Fort William for unloading Feb. 1 and 308 cars for movement east.

The Prices Board paid $460,618 to Canadian chartered banks for services in connection with ration-coupon banking for the period March 1 to Nov. 30, 1943, Finance Minister Ilsley said in reply to a question of A. M. Nicholson (CCF-Mackenzie).

Commissions and service fees paid to chartered banks of Canada and banks incorporated under the Quebec savings bank act in connection with issue and sale of the first and second war loan and four victory loans amounted to $10,197,745, Fianance Minister Ilsley said in a written reply to a question of A. M. Nicholson (C.C.F., MacKenzie). Service fees for the fifth victory loan have not yet been paid. Banks receive no remuneration for sale of war savings stamps and certificates.

Transport Minister Michaud, in a written reply said the government was not responsible for loss or damage suffered by private firms which stored in a national harbors board Quebec warehouse 64,118 pounds of beef subsequently withheld from public sale by health authorities.

Retired naval officers called for active service, newly-promoted warrant officers and Wren officers are to get uniform allowances ranging for $150 to $250, depending on various circumstances, according to a naval order tabled in the commons.

With the aim of conserving fresh water aboard ships at sea, the Royal Canadian Navy has developed a salt-water soap for cleaning purposes, it was shown in a tabled naval order. The order did not elaborate on the development or qualities of the new soap.

Looking to the post-war employment of its telegraphists and radio artificers, the Royal Canadian Navy has made arrangements with the transport department for naval candidates to set twice yearly for proficiency examinations qualifying them for radio jobs that may be available after the war ends, it was disclosed in naval orders tabled in the commons.

Canadian Army Act Is Claimed Badly Drafted

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—J.F. Pouliot (L., Temiscouata), said yesterday in the commons that the army act is a "badly-drafted" piece of English legislation and therefor was willingly accepted by the "Tory party."

The legislation under which Canadians served in the forces should be "clear, not foggy as this is," said Mr. Pouliot after reading some provisions of the act.

A sign in a Montreal railway station said some 17,000 railwaymen had been taken into he forces, but "the army is not satisfied yet." The total now was near 21,000.

NEEDED BY RAILWAYS

An experienced railwayman was more valuable in the transportation service than in the army, said Mr. Pouliot.

Ralston Defends Soldiers' Wives On "Behavior"

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston said last night in the Commons it was a "slander on the wives of the soldiers" to suggest that a majority of people in Canadian communities would express a poor opinion on the conduct of the wives of men overseas.

During discussion of dependents' allowances, F. D. Shaw (N.D., Red Deer) said that when a soldier's wife was not conducting herself properly authorities could make inquiry in the community in which she lived.

"It is almost impossible for a soldier's wife to appear at a dance or other function without the community speaking about it afterwards," said Mr. Shaw.

"In 99 cases out of 100 the person making an inquiry would not get a very favorable impression."

RALSTON DISAGREES

Col. Ralston: "I don't agree with that."

Maj. Leslie Mutch (L., Winnipeg South): "I'd have moved if I lived in a community like that."

Col. Ralston: "I take issue when my friend suggests that 99 out of a 100 would reflect on the reputation of soldiers' wives."

Maj. Mutch: "This will make nice reading in England."

Col. Ralston: "This is a slander on the wives of the soldiers."

Mrs. Cora Casselman (L., Edmonton East): "It is a slander on the whole community."

Mr. Shaw said he was not "very impressed" with the remarks which had been made. He had attempted to indicate that community inquiries might not be as effective as was thought in establishing whether a dependent's allowance should be continued.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—Two 12-year-old boys, carried away by the spirit of a snowball fight, were held responsible yesterday for inflicting $15,000 damage on the Bayside All Saints' Episcopal church. The boys pitched hymnals and Bibles at each other, breaking electric light bulbs, smashing windows, ripping out organ pipes and injuring altar adornments.

U.S. Senate Passes Relief Resolution

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—(AP)—The senate yesterday passed and returned to the house of representatives a resolution authorizing a $1,350,000,000 contribution by the United States to the United Nations' relief and rehabilitation administration program for the aid of civilians in liberated territory. The vote was 47 to 14. An amendment barred use of any of the funds for education, religious or political purposes.

Army "Retraining" Centres Not "Wise" In All Provinces

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston last night told the commons it is not practicable to leave an army "retaining" centre in each province.

He was answering a question from Victor Quelch (N.D., Acadia), who asked if one could be set up in Alberta and said the Alberta government had offered government house as a convalescent home.

The minister said the same purpose was served by what the army called a "retaining" centre. One had been established in British Columbia and another at Oakville, Ont.

It had been found better to leave a large concentration of men at a few points rather than a few men at many points, both from the point of view of economy and of efficiency. The minimum number of men at a centre was 200, he said.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"There's nothing like a package from home to keep up your morale!"

START A CLEAN PLATE CLUB IN YOUR HOME

If you want to do your part in hastening victory, to bring our boys back safely and sooner, you may begin by saving all the food you can. Our fighting men overseas consume staggering amounts of food, but Canada's abundance can fill the need and supply the home front, too, as long as every family makes a real effort to cut out waste. One way you, Mrs. Housewife, can help is by serving smaller portions so that everybody's plate is cleaned right up. And don't serve second heldings unless they're asked for.

Save Food for Fighters! Here are
TEN FOOD-SAVING RULES
For Wartime

1 PLAN FOOD BUYING CAREFULLY. Buy only the foods you know your family will eat. Calculate quantities so that there are no left-overs.
2 PLANT A VICTORY GARDEN. Help to increase Canada's food production by growing your own vegetables and fruits. Raise chickens and any other stock you can.
3 AVOID WASTE IN PREPARING. Measure all ingredients. Watch vegetable and fruit peelings—peel them thin. Cook potatoes in skins.
4 COOK FOODS PROPERLY. Follow your cook book carefully so as to avoid waste and retain maximum food values.
5 SERVE SMALLER PORTIONS. Start a Clean Plate Club in your home! Don't urge second helpings—let them ask for more.
6 SAVE LEFT-OVERS. When you do cook too much, save meat and vegetable remnants for stews, bones for soups, bread-crumbs for stuffings.
7 SAVE SURPLUS FATS. Use what you need in your own cooking. What's left over turn in with your other salvage.
8 DO NOT HOARD. Canada has a sufficiency of all the foods you need. Don't hoard or buy foods for the sake of using up your ration coupons.
9 ENCOURAGE OTHERS TO SAVE. Share with your friends any food saving tips you hear or read. Don't spread gossip about "shortages" or tips that may start runs on unrationed foods.
10 REDUCE YOUR FOOD BILL. Choose economical foods—those with concentrated nutriment. Try to keep down and reduce your total food bill.

Auto License Plates

It is announced that, because of the current metal shortage, no new license plates will be issued for motor cars in Alberta, but that stickers will be supplied to 1944-45 licensees instead.

Generally speaking, the custom of plastering windshields with stickers is not a safe one. Anything that interferes with the full vision of the driver or tends to divert his attention is an additional traffic hazard.

Nevertheless, as an alternative to waste of metal, even the windshield sticker can be tolerated. For the annual issue of metal plates, even in peacetime, is a cumbersome, complicated and extravagant business.

Surely there is justification for a close study of the English system under which there is only one set of plates for the lifetime of a car and under which the licensee carries his annual documentary license but does not necessarily expose it on a windshield.

Y.M.C.A. and Delinquency

The Canadian Y.M.C.A., embarking on a national program of establishing community branches to combat the growth of juvenile delinquency, is performing a worthy and substantial service for this country.

With a certain amount of truth, the criticism has sometimes been levelled against Y.M.C.A. youth organizations that they get any number of good boys, but fail to take in the bad ones who really need help.

The community branch system avoids this handicap, if it actually is a handicap. It goes to the boy, instead of waiting for the boy to come to it. It invades his own stamping ground. And if the work is carried out with the color and vigor which Y.M.C.A. workers usually employ in their labors, the boy in danger will be drawn into the picture through a curiosity likely to rapidly develop into genuine interest.

Few boys go wrong if they are given something interesting to do. The Y.M.C.A. develops this formula with conspicuous success.

Big Enough

The Commonwealth Air Training system has reached the dimensions thought to be necessary. The Minister, Hon. C. H. Power, says there will be a gradual closing of training schools and units, and a progressive scaling down of the number of recruits taken on. The rate of curtailment in each case depending of course on how rapidly the enemy military strength crumbles away.

The direct significance is that Allied air power is now believed to be assured for present and prospective needs, that it will not be necessary to increase the output of trained fliers, and that the time is in sight when a reduction of students and schools can be safely started. This must be the opinion of the experts of all the Allied countries, since Canada has been planning its war effort according to their judgment and not that of Canadian authorities only.

The statement is not that Canada's air force is to be cut down at once, nor those of the other British nations, but that the training scheme in conjunction with those of the other British nations, but that the manned by maintaining the present stream of graduates. When and how fast reductions of plant and enlistments will be advisable remains for the future to disclose.

Aside from the victories our forces have won in both areas of combat, nothing more encouraging has come from official quarters than this intimation that the Allies now hold undoubted air supremacy in both, sufficient to warrant the halting of expansion of training facilities. Germany and Japan relied upon their strength in the air to blast their way to victory. But the big flying fleets are now on our side, and it is only needful to hold the margin of superiority that has been gained.

Maybe Stalin Would Agree

The Doukhobor immigrants came to Canada from Russia. Mr. Esling, member of parliament for Kooteney West, wants them sent back. Everybody—except the Doukhobors—will be for that if it can be done.

The trouble is that the immigrants are mostly dead by this time. Those who survive and are not naturalized are 45 years of age or over. Their children and grandchildren, having been born in Canada, are Canadian citizens, and therefore exempt from deportation.

That Stalin would agree to admit the unwanted ones to Russia under any circumstances is discouragingly doubtful. That he would agree to take back those who have reached or passed their prime is hopeless, unless the younger ones went along to take care of them—which is no more likely. Stalin has probably heard enough about the "peculiar people" to reconcile himself to the thought of their permanent absence from Russia.

While it is true that the younger elements have learned their disrobing and other objectionable tendencies from the elders, the inconvenient fact is that they have learned these ways; and would not unlearn them even if the older malcontents were shipped back to Russia. The imported fanatical beliefs and fantastic behaviour have been bequeathed to the Canadian-born generation, and these have shown themselves to be undesirably apt pupils.

We may as well assume that the Sons of Freedom are Canada's problem, and that one way or another we shall have to deal with them. It is too bad that we can't unload them, but there just doesn't seem to be a glimmer of hope that we can do it.

Alcohol for War

While the question is largely hypothetical, it is interesting to speculate on how Canada would have managed for industrial alcohol had the distilleries of this country not had in operation large plants for the manufacture of that essential war chemical.

Alcohol is used in a multiplicity of ways in war. It is employed widely in dressing wounds; it is necessary to the manufacture of synthetic rubber; its use enters into almost every industrial process in the making of war material.

The distilleries of Canada, able to supply alcohol in large quantities and without delay, have made one of the least spectacular but most useful contributions to the war effort.

The monastery at Cassino was bombed and shelled, since the Nazi garrison refused to evacuate and was using it as a vantage point from which to shell Allied troops. Any other kind of building would have been blown to pieces long ago in the circumstances. The monastery was spared so long only because of its religious and historic interest, and no doubt at the cost of the lives of some Allied soldiers. No possible question can be raised as to where responsibility rests for its destruction.

The Sons of Freedom section of the Doukhobors in the Nelson district are organizing some kind of resistance against the order that conscientious observers must do non-military work. This is not because they are lazy, but because they are opposed to taking orders from the public authority. The stronger their rebellious organization becomes, the more important it will be that it be dealt with firmly. This in the interest of the demented Douks themselves, though there is no prospect of getting their disordered minds to grasp the point that they had better submit to authority than provoke "direct action" on the part of other elements in the community.

Contradictory Information from the Soviet Union

German Dismemberment Is Not Open Policy of Russia

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

In a dispatch from London James B. Reston reports "Soviet Russia is insisting on a clearer commitment from the U.S.A. and Britain on how we intend to deal with Germany. Moscow is said to be dissatisfied with the replies received from Britain and the United States on this question, and their dissatisfaction is increased by the opposition in the American and British press against the breaking up of Germany. When you talk to a Russian about the future of Poland, he shifts the conversation to Germany. The essence of the whole collaboration is where we stand on the future of Germany."

Dorothy Thompson

I doubt whether any newspaper editor in the United States knows how our own government stands on the future of Germany. The only official word has been "unconditional surrender," which is a policy for ending the war, but no plan for the future. In previous columns I have discussed what I believe to be plans for dismembering Germany and patrolling the different parts with three separate armies. I have tried to point out some of the dangers that might arise from this.

Mr. Reston stated in another dispatch that "Russia will have little hesitation about dismembering Germany," and many months ago I heard from a usually unimpeachable source in Washington, that the Soviet Union insisted on German dismemberment.

Disagreement

But does the Soviet Union so insist? Is this the Soviet policy toward Germany? If it is so, this policy has not crept into the Soviet press, and is in total disagreement with Soviet propaganda to Germany. The line which the Soviets have consistently taken, inside and outside Russia, has never once suggested German dismemberment. On the contrary, Stalin himself has clearly spoken against it.

The Russian peace terms, as set forth in their continuous propaganda to the German people are: withdrawal of the German armies to the frontiers of 1937; utter and ruthless extirpation of Nazism; punishment of all war and Nazi criminals; domestic democratization; the creation of a strong democratic state able to defend itself and that will "ruthlessly suppress any attempt at new plots against the rights of free people or against European peace."

In the Russian press additional demands are made for the restoration of devastated areas with the assistance of German labor, materials, and engineering. But unless I am insufficiently informed—and I would welcome correction—it has never once been suggested that the German state should be disintegrated, or even subjected to any prolonged occupation.

The Free German Committee set up in Moscow last July has never discontinued its activities. It has been given all facilities for reaching the German public and the German armies. Despite the paper shortage it publishes a large weekly; the more significant articles are reprinted in the Russian press; the committee broadcasts three times daily and occupies much of the Soviet medium and short-wave facilities. Loud-speakers have been set up near the front, through which German officers on the Russian side are addressing the German troops; leaflets are dropped behind the German lines from Russian planes.

The Free German Committee is allowed and encouraged to proselytize in prison camps, and a large percentage of German prisoners have been transferred to anti-Nazi camps. So well known a German general as Von Seydlitz is a regular broadcaster. The continual refrain is: Revolt against the Nazis and save Germany!

Contradiction

I cannot dispute the information of Mr. Reston and others. But there is obviously a contradiction. If the Soviets are accusing members of the American press for opposing dismemberment, why do they not advocate it? Obviously it would make wretched psychological warfare, for the masses of Germans would fight to the last ditch against the disintegration of the nation. But what holds for Soviet propaganda also holds for ours.

And are we to assume that all this officially supported propaganda does not represent Soviet policy? Lord Van Sittart, in a discussion between New York and London on the air some months ago lightly assumed that Soviet propaganda was at variance with Soviet policy. If so, it is a departure from Soviet methods, for in the past Soviet propaganda has followed and expressed policy and not been a diversion.

Since we ourselves have never supported officially the line of the free German manifesto, there is every reason to assume that it does not represent American policy. After the Moscow conference, Secretary Hull predicted that the free German committee would disappear. But it has not.

A clarification of this situation is urgent. What are the soviets up to and what are we up to? Elmer Davis has said that our psychological warfare to Germany is one of the most important preparatory factors for invasion. But what psychological warfare?

A Briton on American Humor

By the Marquess of Donegal in the Sunday Dispatch

Humor, British versus American, causes much discussion these days. Are there fundamental differences and, if so, what are they?

Generalizations being invariably incorrect, we will start with one. If there is any fundamental difference, I think it arises from the Briton being an introvert and the American an extrovert. Thus British humor will tend to understatement and American to overstatement.

The reason why an Englishman does not want to talk to everybody he meets and the American does is geographical. We have about a quarter of the population of the United States packed into these islands that could be put many times into the State of Texas. ("With what object?" as the Oxford don so aptly asked in "A Yank at Oxford".)

The resulting tendency to get away from people has affected, among other things, our humor.

Dense

The American stage idea is that an Englishman never gets to the point of a story. Ray Noble, the English band leader, exploits this very well. Stephen Leacock wrote an amusing thesis on this. In it an American tells how he instructs the Pullman porter to wake him up and throw him out at St. Louis. Miles past St. Louis, he wakes up and curses the porter. "Gosh, I wonder who that guy was I threw off at St. Louis?"

Leacock then tells it as the Englishman would tell it. The Englishman's story ends up: "And would you believe it, my dear fellow, the porter clean forgot to wake me!"

Well, I don't think that we are quite as bad as that. But many English people do not appreciate humor by the ridiculous, such as the Marx Brothers' Groucho: "I'd horsewhip you if I had a horse!"

On the other hand, we are not slow. This is proved by the fact that Handley's "Itma"—the most popular program on the BBC—is much faster than Jack Benny's or Bob Hope's.

The insult is a purely American form of humor—Benny: "I don't like to boast. . . ." Reporter: "No, but you will!"

And the reverse insult — Bob Hope: "There they were, thousands of soldiers waiting just to see me. And I turned to Hedy Lamarr. . . ."

I do not know whether the "Shaggy Dog" stories—the stories without any point at all—are British or American. Few people here appreciate them. Those who do, love them and rock with laughter, surrounded by stony silence.

The guest who, when asked by his hostess why he had turned a dish of soup upside down on his head replied: "Good gracious, I thought it was spinach!"

Cannibals

The woman driver is not automatically funny in this country. But I have seldom heard a Bob Hope program in which she is left out. Jokes about cannibals go down well on both sides of the Atlantic.

Cannibal mother, bringing small boy to voodoo-man: "I'm worried about him, Doc. He won't eat anybody!"

Numbers of things are almost automatically good for a laugh both here and in America. A chap getting a custard pie in the face or going head first into a barrel of whitewash is funny all over the world. The mother-in-law was never funny in America and is no longer a winner here.

The BBC thinks that a Lancashire accent is per se excruciatingly funny everywhere. In my opinion, it is not funny anywhere. (That obviously proves that I have no sense of humor.)

Other winners in this country are top-hats, lunatics, and plumbers. But plumbers in England are funny because they leave their mate and tools behind them. In America they are funny because they are always walking in on some blonde in a bathroom.

Then we come to war-time humor. Queue jokes are, of course, exclusively British: "What's this queue for?" "Tales of 'Offmann". "Oh, well, I suppose they'll stew as well as anything else!" And again: "All right, if you won't let me get to the head of the queue I won't open the ruddy shop!"

But the Black Market, particularly in meat, is a much more universal gag in America than here. Charlie McCarthy, when told to be nice to the plumber, asked if he was to be as nice as he had to be to the butcher.

The fact that an American soldier is in some outlandish place—on a desert island, for instance—is an automatically funny setting for a joke to the American mind. To us there is nothing unusual in a British soldier being in some God-forsaken spot. They've been in them for centuries.

Puns

Americans affect to despise the pun. In fact I have read attacks in American books against them that almost amounted to punitive expeditions. (Sorry!)

The fact is that there is nothing worse than a bad pun, but they can be brilliant: Lord Curzon when Foreign Secretary received a telegram: "The monks of Mount Athos have violated their vows." The post office put "cows". Curzon dipped his gold pen in the red ink and wrote: "Obviously a case for a Papal Bull".

Personally, I consider satire the highest form of humor and, although it may exist, I do not know of any American satire comparable with A. P. Herbert's "Misleading Cases" and "Holy Deadlock" to take contemporary literature. They have many excellent parodists and are supreme at burlesquing—for instance—Robert Benchley's short films.

Be this as it may, there is no doubt that we owe a great deal to American humor. "Itma" may be the fastest program on the world's air, but it is probably only due to a long process of becoming "gag" or "wise-crack" minded through the American film that we are able to take it in at that pace.

Another great service that America has done us is to laugh the multiple-line caption to a joke out of court. This was partly due to the defunct predecessor of "Life" burlesquing the English custom of laboriously explaining the joke in italic "stage directions".

Yes, we owe them the one-line caption, all right, and the increasing disappearance of the "repeat" in comedians' gagging is partly due to America's speeding up our wits through the film.

Fine China Is Good Investment

War Brides Choose Quality and Beauty of Pattern

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

War brides of today are choosing china dinnerware just as brides always have—for quality, for beauty of pattern, and for a lifetime.

Though the sets of dishes purchased now may be stored for the duration, many a wedding present cheque is invested in the finest china to be had.

In Edmonton stores you can still find English Wedgwood, Spode, Minton and Royal Dolton china. These historic old houses are permitted to make, for export only, the same beautiful chinaware for which they are world famous. As a result there is a wide choice of both classic and new patterns in the best English ware.

If you are an about-to-be-bride, there is no better future home investment than a few pieces of highest quality china.

Botanical flower prints furnish themes for a group of exquisitely colored service plates. In one pattern a full-blown tiger lily placed in the centre spreads its giant petals to the rim of the plate. Against a cream background, a climbing geranium plant with dusty pink blossoms makes another pattern, and deep scarlet poinsettias are used with white in still another design.

New Designs

To match a colonial dining room is shown a full service of chinaware that looks more fragile than it really is. Small gold polka dots sprinkled on the lacy edged white plates recall a period of Victorian elegance. In the centre of each plate is a bouquet of one red rose and a spray of pale blue forget-me-nots.

The fine craftsmanship of Wedgwood, marked by unique raised patterns, appears in clear new colors such as blue gray, lemon or salmon.

Sets manufactured recently by Wedgwood, expressly for British War Relief, feature historical London scenes in shades of brown on white. Their famous vintage pattern is carried out in chalk white on pale blue.

From the china you will use for best to the gay novelty dinnerware of glazed pottery, a visit to the china departments will give you ideas. And whether it is to replace broken ware or to select a really fine set for a new home you will find what you are looking for.

Silver in Wartime

There is a slightly tarnished tinge to the picture of wedding silver in these war years. The war bride may step into a lot of frustration when she steps forth to buy her precious flatware.

For silver has gone to war as lining for airplane engine bearings, in alloys for joining metal parts, for lining vessels at war plants to hold certain acids or chemicals, to make electrical contact points, condensers and such like. Surgical instruments, parachute hardware, cartridge clips and rifle parts are engaging the attention of manufacturers formerly concerned with silver knives and forks. These precision plants and their skilled silver workers are easily adapting themselves to their war jobs.

Since the amount of silver that can still be used for civilian goods has been drastically cut and there is such an importnt diversion of plant facilities to war work, silver manufacturers are restricting their production of flatware to the essentials—knives, forks and spoons. Silver handled carving sets, along with such can-do-withouts as oyster forks, bouillon spoons and butter knives will be scarce.

There will be no new patterns and many old ones are being discontinued. Stainless steel is also out for the duration.

According to a recent survey it is interesting to note that nearly 70 per cent. of the employed young women between the ages of 20 and 35, and nearly 80 per cent. of the unemployed said, in effect, "If I had my choice I'd rather marry than have a career."

Over 90 per cent. of all the young women approached in this survey of public opinion said they wanted children—with two the number mentioned most often.

The Band Played On

Bennett Cerf in Saturday Review

One place where they really take their music seriously is aboard a certain British airplane carrier. Every afternoon at four, unless there's a heavy gale running or the enemy actually has engaged the ship, there is a concert on deck.

The band sits on the principal plane elevator, which is depressed about two feet, so that the musicians may follow better the baton-wielding of the conductor. He stands at the edge of the deck above, his back to the audience, which is always ample, since every man who can be spared is there under official orders.

On the afternoon in question, the carrier was coursing lazily through Mediterranean waters, and the concert was in full cry.

Suddenly a mechanic in the control room noticed the plane-elevator indicator, which registered the fact that it was not quite flush with the deck. Afraid that the mechanism was out of kilter, he pressed a button hard.

The ship's band, in the middle of the overture from "Carmen", suddenly disappeared from the view of the entranced audience and plunged into the bowels of the ship.

The mechanic, horrified when he saw what he had done, hastily pushed another button. The elevator shot skyward. It came to the surface with a jolt that sent every musician bouncing at least three feet in the air.

But ah, those imperturbable British! Not one man stopped tooting his instrument for a moment during the entire round trip. The leader never lost a beat. When the overture was concluded, the unsmiling ship's company applauded politely.

These devils tell us all sorts of stories about their low morale. But they always seem to keep up their spirits as long as they have something to shoot with. The best way to break a jerry's morale is with a hand grenade.—American officer in Italy.

Brevity Carried to Extreme

From the San Francisco Argonaut

One reads in Hamlet that "Brevity is the soul of wit", but it is Polonius who said a man is not much given to brevity when the fit is on him to speak. He chides his son, Laertes, for not getting aboard his vessel sooner when it was waiting for him, but still he must keep him back a little longer, in order to pour out some advice in connection with his journey. Few men are entirely consistent, and often men contribute to the gaiety of nations by not being. We recently read a book by a man now dead who was in life a lawyer, and ultimately one of the most eloquent voices in the Senate; and this man, who thought we should all go to church, gave in one chapter of his book, some advice to the clergy on the length of their sermons. He said that no clergyman should preach over thirty minutes at longest,' and that twenty minutes was quite long enough for a sermon.

Long-Winded

The advice may have been good or bad; but we observed that the giver of the advice was extremely long-winded in all the chapters that he devoted to giving advice. He was long-winded, just as Polonius was long-winded. It required a little over four hundred pages for him to tell the young men of the nation how they should carry themselves, and what their duties were. One need not complain of his book's length, although it is repetitious in part, for it was rather eloquent, as one would naturally expect an orator's book to be; but why should this man, who evidently loved words so well, have taken it upon himself to tell the clergy how long their sermons should be? He would have resented the advice of a clergyman who told him to confine his addresses to a jury to twenty minutes, or not to speak longer when he had the ear of the Senate. But did not the clergy have an equal right to resent his advice to them?

Eloquent

Many eloquent sermons have been preached from the pulpit in the last two thousand years, so eloquent that they have found their way into print, and may still be read. But we have never found, and we do not believe that anybody else has ever found, a single eloquent sermon in print whose delivery consumed no more than twenty minutes. There are still some Americans who read, partly for its eloquence, and partly for the information contained therein, Theodore Parker's sermon on The Death of Daniel Webster, a sermon that was preached before the largest congregation in Boston, and that is said to have held its auditors spellbound for three hours. Julia Ward Howe, no mean authority, said in her old age that it was the greatest thing she had ever heard in her long life. The sermon stenographically reported, was flashed across the wires and appeared in many daily newspapers, and was widely read by many of the greatest in the land. It angered not a few people, for Parker did not hesitate to reveal all the various sides of the man's character—the great and the small, and he possessed both.

We have always had a notion that any thing that is worth doing at all is worth doing well. A recent critic of Jacques Barzun's book on Romanticism and the Modern Ego praises it, but he thinks that he should have written a longer book, believing that it suffers from "overcompression". Well, we think that most writing at present suffers from overcompression.

If the public of today desires their writers to make it "brief and snappy", there is little that the journalistic profession can do about it but look forward to the time, any moment now, when some enterprising publisher will make a fortune out of printing a Thumb-Nail Digest of the Reader's Digest.

Equal Benefits Under Hospital Plan Protested

The government's proposed free hospitalization plan for maternity patients should not be universal in application, Dr. P. M. Campbell, Independent M.L.A. for Lethbridge, said when he took part in the Throne Speech debate in the Legislature, Thursday.

One man, Dr. Campbell said, might be earning $75 a month, and a second, $250 a month. Under the legislation as planned, both would benefit equally, as hospitalization expenses of both would be paid by the government.

REFERS TO TAXES

Some government revenue is obtained through taxes, Dr. Campbell observed, and he said, "I cannot see why the man who can least afford it should be taxed to help pay the costs for the man who can afford to pay."

The Lethbridge M.L.A. expressed approval of the increase in district agriculturists' staff, as announced in the Throne Speech.

A Borstal or some similar system was suggested by Dr. Campbell as a means to help curb the juvenile delinquency problem. He said magistrates sometimes let teen-age offenders go free, as they felt that if the lads were sent to reform school or to jail, they would be worse when they completed their term than when they were committed.

Regarding gas flares in the Turner Valley, the member said he would not be satisfied as long as the flares were seen. "I have used gas for 30 years, and I would like to use it for another 30," he declared.

Dr. Campbell advocated completion of surfacing on the Lethbridge-Macleod highway, and also on the highway from Lethbridge to Coutts, on the international boundary. The latter route is some 75 miles in length.

38 New Homes Were Assisted By City Group

Edmonton Co-operative Building Association financed the construction of 38 homes in Edmonton during 1943, the first year of operation, it was reported by president J. B. Gillies at the first annual meeting of the association, held in the Social Credit Hall Wednesday evening.

The speaker declared that because the association is a fully co-operative, non-profit organization whose officers act without remuneration, it will eventually win the support of all citizens and businessmen in Edmonton.

He said that during the last summer, more than $100,000 worth of building applications had been received, largely from persons already in possession of $1,000 to $1,150, but because the lending fund had been exhausted, it was not possible to accommodate them.

"We are hoping that recent negotiations with the City of Edmonton, for the purpose of obtaining financial assistance from the surplus funds of Edmonton, may be continued successfully," said Mr. Gillies. "We can operate a housing scheme cheaper than any civic department can do it, and the operations of 1943 prove our point."

APPROVE DIVIDEND

Shareholders approved the decision of the directors to pay a 4 per cent dividend on shares, and gave unanimous endorsation to the financial report of Williston Hazzard, secretary-treasurer, which disclosed that mortgages valued at $82,920.48 comprised the major assets of the association.

Share capital was reported at $8,908.90 and the shareholders numbered 89 at Dec. 31 last.

In the election of directors which followed, C. J. Purvis, K.C., and J. W. Brown were returned for three-year terms, and H. D. Carrigan was elected to serve for two years. Other directors are Mr. Gillies, Wellesley Fraser and D. T. Forster.

Missing Persons Sought in City

Ludger Verville and Seley Verville, brother-in-law and sister of Edward Brouillette, 1009 Park avenue, Racine, Wisconsin, are being sought by the bureau of missing persons, city police department.

Mr. Brouillette, in a communication to local police authorities, stated that his sister is French by birth, and that she and her husband lived in Edmonton about 25 years.

He heard from her about three months ago, he continued, but letters he sent to this city were returned, asking for a street address. Persons knowing of the whereabout of the above-named, are asked to communicate with city police.

Store Door Open

What was believed by police to be an attempt to enter the premises of the Northern Hardware, 10146 101 street, was discovered at 11:50 p.m. Thursday, when a rear door to the building was found open by a patrol man. The door, had been forced with a bar. Nothing was stolen, although investigations are still under way.

Driver Fined $50 for Crash Into Cottage

Raoul Fortin, Legal, was found guilty of a dangerous driving charge by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., Thursday afternoon, and fined $50 and costs or two months with hard labor. The case will be appealed in the district court, it was announced.

Fortin, the court was told, was the driver of an auto which turned out to pass a taxi, operated by Joseph Laframboise, 16637 124 street, on Feb. 10, when an accident occurred.

CRASHED INTO HOUSE

After passing the taxi, the accused's car "appeared to go out of control", the taxi driver stated. It "seemed to fly through the air" and hit the side of a cottage owned by Mr. and Mrs. George T. Cubitt, 11806 St. Albert road, passing partially through the wall of the dwelling.

Constable J. H. Cookson told of finding the auto embedded in the side of the house, and said it appeared that the vehicle had crossed the ditch without the wheels dipping at either edge.

The accused, as well as his father, who had been riding in the car at the time, declared that they had been travelling at from 25 to 30 miles an hour. The accused added that the taxi had not stopped before entering the intersection, but it had stopped in the centre of the road.

Mr. Millar, in finding the accused guilty, said he did not have his car under control.

Y.M.C.A. Reports 2 Locker Thefts

Thefts from two lockers in the Y.M.C.A. building were reported to city police Thursday night. A youth, suspected of at least one of the offences, was interviewed.

John Majanarisk, 9639 107 avenue, stated that his billfold, containing $4, his national registration certificate, army rejection papers and a bankbook, was stolen from a locker between 8 p.m. and 10 p.m.

Alex Gerula, 10236 113 street, said that his wallet, containing $6, national registration certificate and other papers, disappeared from his locker between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m., the same day.

The youth interviewed denied knowing anything about the thefts.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean
SPORTS EDITOR

THE success which attended their efforts must prove a real source of satisfaction to those responsible for putting across the two-night boxing tournament staged by the United States Army in the Arena this week. Close to 5,000 is the official estimate of the total attendance.

Last night's was a particularly good show. It was well conducted and with a minimum of delay between events. There wasn't a poor bout on the entire card and there were five very good ones. No. 3 "M" Depot band topped off a nice program.

In his remarks immediately prior to the presentation of prizes, Brig.-Gen. Dale V. Gaffney, general commanding the Alaskan Wing, U.S. Army Air Force, referred to the "good, clean sportsmanship" shown by all contestants and he had special words of praise for the losers of the two nights.

The general also expressed appreciation for the co-operation shown by No. 3 "M" Depot, No. 4 I.T.S. and No. 2 A.O.S. Lt. George Regitko stated last night that all contestants will receive suitable emblems to commemorate the occasion.

THAT BOY CAN HIT

RING-SIDE fans in particular all must have gotten a bang out of the look of utter amazement which registered on Lyle Staff's countenance when Harry Keats went down early in the second round of the heavyweight go.

Obviously the big fellow from No. 4 I.T.S. couldn't believe what he saw and probably didn't realize just how much that right had behind it, but nevertheless the expression of surprise was the most perfect this corner has ever been privileged to witness. That was only the second time Staff had appeared in a ring, but boy, how he can hit!!

When Keats very gamely but rather wobbily struggled to his feet after the seven count, Staff merely followed his groggy opponent around for several seconds. But just about the time he was getting the next barrage fully organized. Referee Moulton called off the whole affair.

Edmonton Soldier To Defend Title Overseas Tourney

EPSOM, England, Feb. 18.—(CP Cable)—The Canadian army's individual boxing championships will be decided here tonight although some of the best ringmen are fighting in Italy with the Canadian corps.

At least three of last year's titleholders as well as many other outstanding army boxers are in action in Italy and at least one of last year's competitors was killed in action in that theatre.

One of those defending his title will be Cpl. Roddy MacDonald of Edmonton who won the 1943 middleweight crowns in both Canadian and British army competition. The only other champion in both the Canadian and British forces, L-Cpl. Tommy Falls, negro heavyweight from Liverpool, N.S., is in Italy.

Poile to Rejoin Toronto While Waiting Remuster

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Norman (Bud) Poile, candidate for rookie of the year honors in his National Hockey League debut with Toronto Maple Leafs last season, has obtained permission to rejoin the club temporarily while awaiting remuster to the Canadian Army from the R.C.A.F.

Poile, who scored 16 goals and had 19 assists in his freshman year of professional competition, volunteered for the R.C.A.F. before the 1942-43 season ended, then changed his mind and answered an army call-up. Several weeks ago he transferred to the R.C.A.F. but was rejected as an aircrew candidate after failing to pass link trainer tests.

"I've no idea how long we'll have Poile with us," said coach Harry Day in making the announcement. "But you can say as loud as you like it's a welcome reinforcement."

The 20-year-old centre, imported from Lakehead junior ranks last season, will play for Leafs Saturday against Boston Bruins.

HIGHLIGHTED by three technical knockouts, the snappy nine-bout card for the second evening of the United States Army's boxing tournament provided plenty of action for over 2,500 fans at the Arena on Thursday night. There were 13 events on Tuesday's program.

Two of the participants — P. E. Tumilson of No. 3 "M" Depot and John R. Hopkins, U.S. Air Corps—won a pair of fights, Hopkins stopping his man in the third bout early in the second round. Owen Rowe, No. 3 "M" Depot and Lyle Staff, from No. 4 I.T.S., also won on T.K.O.'s. Other winners last night were Billie Petersen, Air Corps, and J . M. Haddock, "M" Depot.

Capt. William Moulton and Lt. George Regitko, both of U.S. Air Corps shared third-man-in-the-ring duties, while the judges were Capt. Frank Wrigglesworth and Capt. Gill, both of the Air Corps and FO. J. C. (Jake) Jamieson of I.T.S. and PO. Gerry Widdrington of No. 2 A.O.S. Rene LeBlanc was timer.

Brig.-Gen. Dale V. Gaffney, general commanding the Alaskan Wing of the U.S. Army Air Force Transport Command presented the trophies to the various winners. John R. Hopkins was the recipient of the special award for "best sportsmanship" in the two-night tournament and the trophy which went to the unit having the most winners was received by Lt. Pearson, of Unit B, of U.S. Air Corps.

The first bout went to P. E. Tumilson of "M" Depot who won a decision over Salatore Guliano, of U.S. Air Corps, but the loser had a margin in the first of the three rounds, even although he did fade near the finish. These boys were in the 147 pound class.

Billie Petersen, smart Montanan, made his ring-craft count in the third round particularly, in his bout with the 160-pound George C. Davis, also of the U.S. Air Corps and received the nod in the second event.

A hard smash to the head at the start of the second round won the third event for John H. Hopkins over Frank Boxall, of No. 2 A.O.S. This blow, following another to the body badly jarred Boxall and referee Capt. Moulton eventually stopped the bout as Boxall was taking quite a beating and was obviously unable to retaliate.

The two 126-pounders J. H. Haddock, of "M" Depot and William E. Bone, Air Corps, took considerable time to get down to business. Haddock made a strong finish to take a close decision.

Owen Rowe, of "M" Depot who comes from Barbados, West Indies, was much too good for Burt Renne, of Air Corps and the referee, Lt. George Regitko stopped the fight in the second round. Jimmy Graham of I.T.S. was originally listed as Renne's opponent. Both were 135 pounders.

Tumilson came back in the sixth event and took a decision from Tim Catanzaro, Air Corps, for his second win for the night. This was easily one of the best bouts on the card and the two boys, well matched too, weren't afraid to mix it and they really threw a lot of heavy punches.

The bout between Hopkins (his second) and John C. Johnson, also of Air Corps was another swell bout, with real honest toe to toe slugging in the third round. The Oklahoman took the decision, but the fair-haired Johnson put up a grand fight for his home state, Nebraska.

Lyle Staff, a big fellow from No. 4 I.T.S., made his second ring appearance also a winning one when he was awarded a technical kalo over Harry Keats, Air Corps, in the eighth bout. Staff had never entered a ring until Tuesday night. This boy really can hit and Keats was down for a seven-count early in the second and was practically out on his feet when Referee Moulton halted the bout a few seconds later.

The final bout was a three-round exhibition between Billie Petersen, and Morton Goodstein. At 160, Petersen gave away 50 pounds to his opponent. There was of course no decision.

TUMILSON VS. GULIANO

Guliano, who put on a real fight with Tumilson in the opening bout on the card, landed the first blow of the night, a hard right to the jaw. Guliano was the aggressor in the first round and had a margin, even although he did go down on one knee just before the bell.

The two boys wasted time in clinches in the early part of the second round. Tumilson drove a hard right to the face and it was now Guliano's turn to be followed around the ring. Tumilson took a good blow also to the face and both were bleeding as the round ended.

Guliano opened a cut over Tumilson's eye, but missed many of his swings and was obviously tiring early in the third round. Tumilson was playing to Guliano's face and a hard smash to the body sent Guliano down for a one-count. The round was Tumilson's easily and he was awarded the decision.

PETERSEN SHADES DAVIS

Petersen and Davis spent most of the first round sparring and there was not a single solid blow landed. The second round was also rather tame, but Petersen was beginning to open up and got in one beautiful uppercut to the chin. Davis kept trying for Petersen's body, but the Montanan covered up well.

Petersen took the third round, opening with a right to the body and followed with a hard one to the face.

HOPKINS BEATS BOXALL

Hopkins and Boxall mixed it right from the opening gong. Hopkins landed first and they really swapped punches all through the round. Hopkins was the aggressor, but on the close-in exchanges Boxall appeared to have a slight edge.

A terrific smash to the head as the second round opened won the fight for Hopkins, although the two stood toe-to-toe and slugged it out. Hopkins' blows clearly were the more telling and Boxall was pretty well all-in when Referee Moulton stepped in between them and stopped the bout.

HADDOCK OVER BONE

Haddock and Bone, the two 126-pounders, did a lot of stalking and walking in the early part of their fight. Bone appeared to be the smarter fighter, but Haddock eventually went on the offensive. Bone was warned by Referee Regitko for hitting in the clinches.

Bone went down for a no-count after a right to the face as the second round opened. Bone kept playing to Haddock's body, which began to take on a nice Vermilion hue. Haddock was having a distinct margin as the round ended and evidently too intent on his work for he obviously never heard the gong.

Haddock took the last round by a big margin. He kept flicking his left to Bone's face, occasionally landing a solid punch as he followed his opponent around.

ROWE STOPS RENNE

Owen Rowe, a nice fighter who knows not only how to hit but to cover up as well, won the fifth bout all the way. Renne never had any chance with the clever boy from the Barbadoes.

A stinging left to the body sent Renne down for a count of one before the round was well underway. Renne got in a right to the face, but took another left in return and down he

Almost Breaks Scoring Record

Richard Nets Three in Last As Canadiens Down Detroit

DETROIT, Feb. 18.—(CP)—The pace-setting Montreal Canadiens showed Detroit Red Wings who is boss in the National Hockey League last night by rallying with three third-period goals for a 3-2 victory over the second-place wings.

Maurice Richard turned the hat trick for the winners, slamming in all three goals within two minutes and 13 seconds. His feat was 21 seconds off the league's quick-scoring pace set by Carl Liscombe here March 13, 1938, when he scored three goals in one minute, 52 seconds.

A crowd of 13,175 saw the 2-0 lead built up by the Wings in the first two periods go over the side when Richard let loose. His first two goals came while Detroit was a man short but the winner was scored with sides even. Two of the goals came on 50-foot drives, and toe Blake drew assists on all three of them. Leo Lamoureux also figured in the middle one.

The Wings, who have lost only two of their last 15 games, took the lead in the second period on goals by Liscombe and Adam Brown, after a scoreless initial frame. That paved the way for Richard's feat.

Montgomery Meets Al Davis Tonight

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Bob Montgomery, former lightweight champion from Philadelphia, meets Brooklyn's Al Davis tonight in a Madison Square Garden 10-rounder which the exking just can't afford to lose.

Montgomery gets a chance two weeks hence to win back the lightweight crown from Beau Jack, to whom he lost it last November.

The experts believe the bout will end in a kayo, although Montgomery never has been stopped, and Davis has been halted only once, Fritzie Zivic turning the trick in 1941.

16 Finals Set For Tonight

Westmount Skaters Take 7 Of Alberta Championships

WITH seven firsts going to Westmount, six to Rossdale and a pair to a Jasper Place skater, 15 finals were run off on the opening of the Alberta Indoor speed skating championships at the 119 Street rink Thursday night.

There were no records established although the ice was in perfect condition, but some very good times were made, especially that of Albert Hardy of Rossdale in the senior men's 220 yards race. His clocking was 22 seconds, just 3-5 of a second off the provincial mark.

Best performance of the opening night was turned in by Hardy, who won both the senior men's 220 and 440 and then came third in the senor men's mile.

Two other skaters came first in a pair of finals. Nola McKenzie, lone Jasper Place entry, captured the juvenile girls' 220 and 400 events while Barbara Robertson of Westmount crossed the line first in both the midget girls' 220 and 1-6 mile events. Barbara won handily over Rita Nielson of Rossdale who came second in the two midget girls' championships.

Geoffrey Lovette of Rossdale took one of the feature races of the evening when he won the senior men's mile event by beating Bill Kasting, his club member and Hardy who were second and third respectively. Lovett also came second in the 440 and third in the 220. Kasting raced next to Hardy in the 220 and followed Lovette in the 440.

I ALWAYS GET CLEAN, QUICK SHAVES WITH BLUE GILLETTE BLADES

Clem McCarthy
Ace Reporter on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports says

"A TRIP through the Gillette factory showed me why I always get clean, quick shaves with Blue Gillette Blades. I saw steel hardened in automatically-controlled electric furnaces . . . saw the blades sharpened in grinding machines weighing several tons—yet so precise that they are adjustable to 1/10,000 of an inch. So my advice to any man who wants to enjoy shaving is to use Blue Gillette Blades."

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(BUP)—When the National Football League holds its annual schedule meeting at Philadelphia on April 19, coach Curly Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers will propose that circuit play be limited to eight teams for the duration.

He also will advise the grid moguls to regard as nonsense recent intimations that owners of major league baseball parks might try to invade the realm of pro football.

Chunky Lambeau, whose black locks are now flecked with silver, does not oppose granting requested new franchises this year, so that there will be 11 or 12 clubs in the circuit. But he insists that a proposed new club, like Boston, or Buffalo; or a club resuming operations, like Cleveland, should combine with a second-division club—like the Chicago Cardinals, Detroit or Brooklyn—to form a combination team because of the manpower shortage. He advocated that Philadelphia and Pittsburgh continue their Phil-Pitt. combination of 1943.

AGAINST BEST INTERESTS

EIGHT teams, including the Phil-Pitt. outfit, operated during the '43 season; and Curly—drawing upon the experience of 25 years at the Packers' helm—is convinced that it would be against the best interests of the game to attempt to put additional teams upon the gridiron now, in view of the increasing service inroads on the players.

Lambeau, visiting New York on his annual trans-continental talent-scouting expedition, is confident that enough talent will remain for eight good teams. He believes those eight will be able to replace their losses to the armed services by means of players who have been honorably discharged from the services and by means of new men who have failed to pass their physical examinations or who have not been called yet.

Mentioning his own Green Bay club as an example, Lambeau said, "We've lost three men already; and perhaps another half-dozen will be gone before the season opens. Honorable discharges (for physical reasons) are our best bet as replacements. Other prospects decidedly are limited. We're scouring the country; and we find that college players, unless they're 4F's, are unavailable. Talent from other sources is mighty scarce."

PARK OWNERS SMART

WHAT about the suggested possibility of major league baseball park owners invading pro football?

Lambeau said there was no chance of that "because there is little similarity in the conduct of the two sports." He stressed that baseball owners "have enough difficulty in operating successfully the sport they know; and they're smart enough not to venture into a strange sport that too often proves a gamble even for men who know it well."

Lambeau concluded that the owners of most baseball parks "are quite content to see pro football teams using the parks during the off-season and paying good rent for such use. For example, owners of the Polo Ground received $75,000 from the New York Football Giants last season. And that ain't hay."

E.A.C. Juveniles Beat South Side By Score of 4-3

Although Don Robertson rapped in three goals for South Side, his team bowed 4-3 Thursday night at the South Side rink in the last scheduled game of the City Juvenile Hockey League. Playoffs in the loop start on Monday night with these two teams opening a two-game, total-point series at the 119 street rink, with the second fixture to be played at S.S.

The win for the E.A.C. moved them into second place, eight points behind the leading Maple Leafs and one ahead of South Side. The winner of the semi-final series will meet Maple Leafs of the city championship in a best of five series.

Eric MacDonald led the Clubmen to their victory with two goals and an assist while the other counters were driven home by Terry Cavanagh and Bill Pettinger.

Robertson tallied for the South Siders and MacDonald for the winners in the first period to make it 1-1 at the end of that session, but Pettinger, Cavanagh and Mac Donald each scored for E.A.C. in the second to make it 4-1 before Robertson finished off two plays in the last.

Carroll's opening winter book odds make Pukka Gin the favorite at 6 to 1. Others were: Platter 8 to 1; Durazna, Miss Keeneland and Occupy, 12 to 1, and Lucky Draw, Weyanoke, Royal Prince, Director J. E. and Boojiana, 15 to 1.

Three of the 10, Durazna, Miss Keeneland and Boojiana are fillies.

Buffalo Bisons Whip Reds 8-4

BUFFALO, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Buffalo Bisons whipped the lowly Providence Reds 8-4 last night in an American Hockey League game played before 3,997 spectators.

Dede Klein and Max Bennett paced the local onslaught with two goals each, while Roland Forget scored two for the Reds.

Other Buffalo scorers were Thurier, Thibeault, Rimstad and Kobussen. Reds' other marksmen were Whittet and Toupin.

Leo Johnson Cops Manitoba Consols

WINNIPEG, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Leo Johnson, ace skip from the Winnipeg Strathcona Club, won the British Consols trophy, emblematic of curling supremacy in Manitoba last night when he defeated Bung Cartmell of Glenboro, Man., 16-6 in the final game of the competition at Manitoba's 56th annual bonspiel.

Ken Watson, Winnipeg Strathcona, the bonspiel's grand aggregate winner, holder of the Birks-Dingwall grand challenge event in Wednesday's play, added another trophy to his collection when he trimmed a club mate, Ross Kennedy, 13-6 in the final of the Eaton event. went again, although he got right up looking for more.

Renne delivered a couple of light blows to the head as the second round opened, but Rowe then went to work and wound up the affair in short order. Renne went down twice more and the referee, George Regitko, stopped the bout.

SECOND FOR TUMILSON

Tumilson's second appearance, this time with Tim Catanzaro, resulted in another good bout. There wasn't much action in the first round—chiefly just stalking and feinting. Tumilson got in a good left to the face just as the bell ment.

The boys opened up in the second round. Catanzaro landed heavily with a right to the face and he opened up the cut over Tumilson's eye received in his first bout. It was Catanzaro's round.

A hard left to the body as the third round opened clearly got Tumilson's ire up and he waded right in. A left to the body and a hard right to the jaw sent Catanzaro down for a count of two and he was decidedly groggy when he got up, although he did appear to be coming back as the gong went.

ANOTHER TO HOPKINS

The seventh was Hopkins' repeat performance. He held a small margin over Johnson, in the first round, a jabbing left giving the Nebraskan a lot of worry.

It was Johnson's turn to produce a good left in the second round and he kept shooting it to Hopkins' head. Hopkins was the aggressor, but he was bleeding from the nose as the round ended.

There was real slugging in the final session. Hopkins opened with a right to the face and followed with one to the nose. Johnson countered, but Hopkins gradually gained the upper hand. Both were bleeding profusely. Johnson appeared to be hanging on by sheer grit and took a lot of punishment toward the close of the round, which was easily Hopkins'.

STAFF BY T.K.O.

The eighth bout marked the second ring appearance for Lyle Staff, of No. 4 I.T.S., and it was another success. The big fellow had too much sheer power for Harry Keats, his slimmer opponent from the Air Corps and he made it count right from the start. Staff unlimbered a hard right ot the head and another to the body. Keats got in one good right to the face.

Keats went down with a right to the head for a count of seven early in the second and he wobbled around for several seconds after he got up. He was groggy and Staff discovered it was still within the rules to continue punching and went to work again. Referee Moulton stopped the bout.

Billie Petersen and Morton Goodstein made their exhibition look pretty good.

SUMMARY RESULTS

147 Pound class—P. E. Tumilson (3 "M") vs Salatore Guliano (U.S. Air Corps). Won by Tumilson—decision.

160 Pounds—George C. Davis (Air Corps) vs Billie Petersen (Air Corps). Won by Petersen—decision.

LONACONING, Md., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Organized baseball and other sports are wartime necessities which should not be rationed "Even if they have to call us old fellows back" says that eminent exmaestro of the fireball, Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove.

But the former great hurler with the Philadelphia Athletics and the Boston Red Sox doesn't believe the manpower situation will become so desperate that he will be asked to put away his gun and fishing tackle and come to the aid of the national pastime.

If he were to dig out his old glove it almost certainly would be a long, tough comeback trail for a 43-year-old gaffer two years out of action.

"There still is plenty of good material just over 38 and under 18 and enough of the young ones to keep the game going as long and as far as 99 per cent of our boys over there want it to go," he asserts.

The erstwhile king of the southpaws runs a farm and a combination bowling alley-billiard parlor, as well as dabbling in amateur photography, woodworking and toolmaking.

And after a quarter of a century bouncing around the baseball circuits—years in which he amassed 415 victories, 300 of them in the majors, and made himself money running well into six figures—the gray-haired veteran is at last taking root in one place and liking it.

Bible Reason Men Give Lives Minister Says

The Bible is one of the things in danger of being lost, and one of the reasons why young men are giving their lives today, the Rev. John E. Herzer of Grace Lutheran church, told 111 delegates of Walther League societies at the annual Northern Alberta Zone conference held here recently.

Young people were present from Stony Plain, Fort Saskatchewan, Wetaskiwin and Leduc.

There were also members from as far as Chicago, Texas and Wisconsin.

Other Canadian representatives of Walther leagues were here from Cadomin, Calgary and Kelowna.

Mr. Herzer warned that the Bible can be lost by neglecting to read and study it, and by acceptance of a modernism that denies the divinity of Christ as man's savior.

TELLS OF KISKA

One afternoon session was featured by a brief informal talk by Pte. Paul Gaebel of Spruce Grove, who related some of the incidents which occured to the Canadian troops who occupied Kiska last fall.

At present home on 30 days' furlough, Pte. Gaebel expressed his appreciation of the wonderful weather enjoyed in Edmonton as compared to 110 miles an hour winds on Kiska.

He mentioned the fact that grass on Kiska does not grow to a height of more than two inches as it is cut off by the fierceness of the winds. Of interest to fellow-leaguers was a hand-made ash-tray which Pte. Gaebel fashioned in his spare time at Kiska from anti-aircraft, machinegun and rifle cartridges. Hobbies which had been undeveloped prior to arrival in Kiska were soon developed and cultivated as the men found much spare time available for such pursuits, he said.

Edith Lechelt of Stony Plain was elected chairman of the Northern Alberta zone committee for the ensuing year with Tillie Radke, Arno Guenther, Walter Gaebel and Walter Bietch as other members.

At another session the talent quest entries were judged with society first-place award going to Grace Walther League, Edmonton.

Individual first-place winners winners were: male baritone solo, Arthur Borchers; needlecraft, Ruth Appelt; woodwork, Victor Kuring; poetry, John Ulmer. Judges included the Rev. Mr. Schwerman, Mrs. Guebert, and David Appelt. The Rev. C. Klewer was in charge of all entries.

Social Credit Member Raps Health Scheme

The national health insurance scheme as advocated by the Dominion government is nothing but a device to fasten a vast state bureaucracy upon the nation, William Tomyn, Social Credit M.L.A. for Willingdon, stated in the Legislature Thursday afternoon, when he spoke in the Throne Speech debate.

Any scheme which suggests compulsion is detrimental to the democratic way of life, and this particular plan is another attempt of the vested interests to railroad the people into a servile state, said Mr. Tomyn.

DEFINITELY NOT CURE

He continued: "Just as compulsory unemployment insurance is definitely not a cure for our economic ills, neither is health insurance for our physical ills.

"It is quite evident that we must expose these compulsory rackets, whatever they may be, in their proper light and fight more vigorously that which brings us nearer to the detested totalitarian way of life."

There is very grave danger, Mr. Tomyn said, if Canada adopts this compulsory bureaucratic scheme on a nation-wide scale. "In my estimation, it is a half-baked measure, and if once instituted it would be a set-back for the nation for the next 50 years.

"Let us warn the people of the deadly effects once this financial soothing syrup is swallowed. Anything that receives the political blessings and commendation of Finance Capitalist King and State Capitalist Coldwell, beware. It is a red light for us to stop and take heed."

TREATMENT STRESSED

Health insurance and in fact all such compulsory insurance schemes are symptoms of disintegration, said the Willingdon M.L.A. He pointed out that in the proposed Canadian scheme, greater emphasis is placed on the treatment of sickness and ill-health, rather than on prevention of sickness and the preservation of health.

"If it is our desire to provide facilities for promoting health which modern science has made available for us, then it is our duty to establish such a system that would not necessitate the need for compulsory fees. If economic conditions continue to prevail as they are today, where one must be taxed in order to live, the possibilities of the best medical care will still be beyond the reach of an average citizen."

Mr. Tomyn enumerated his objections to the proposed health plan as follows: That no emphasis is laid upon preventative medicine, which should constitute the major part of any health scheme; and that it involves wage taxation.

"If an employee is taxed, his wages are reduced and thus the purchasing power of the individual is decreased," the legislature was told.

CONTRIBUTING FACTORS

The greatest contributing factors to illness are poverty and economic insecurity, leading to improper nourishment and worry, Mr. Tomyn continued.

If further deductions were to be made under this health scheme, the ultimate result would be shown in the deterioration of the national morale, and the neglect of physical culture.

"Let us raise the standard of living of our people by giving them a just price and fair wages, and their entitled share of good housing facilities—running water, proper sewage disposal, and electrification. Then there would be no need to place emphasis on the treatment of sickness and disease.

"There would be no need for wage taxation, as greater attention would be placed on the prevention of sickness and the preservation of health. Let us then, remove some of the economic evils and our health will be restored," said the member.

JIBE AT C.C.F.

Taking a jibe at the C.C.F. movement, Mr. Tomyn said early in his address: "I have a strange foreboding that the C.C.F. would like to embrace the Labor-Progressive or the so-called Communist group, but due to their former anti-religious activities, they are afraid that public reaction would be most unfavorable.

"Fundamentally, Mr. Speaker, there is no difference in the philosophy of these two socialistic groups—the only difference lies in the fact that our Communist comrades possess no streak of pusillanimity, in plain words no streak of cowardice—they tell us point blank as to their method of accomplishing their objective."

Seeks Information On Bank Charter

The renewal of Alberta's application for a provincial bank charter, as forecast this week by Premier Ernest Manning when he spoke in the Legislature, came up on the floor of the House again Thursday.

At the commencement of Thursday's sitting, Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., Liberal M.L.A. for Edmonton, asked the government: "In the proposed application by the government to the Dominion Parliament for a bank charter, will the government ask for any privileges or concessions not granted to banks in Canada other than to the Bank of Canada?"

Mr. Macdonald was asked to put his question on the Legislature's order paper, and it would come before the House through that channel.

Tanner Opposes Confiscation Oil Property

Necessity to Encourage Development in Province Is Stressed by Minister

Opposition to confiscation of oil properties in Alberta was voiced in the Legislature Thursday afternoon, when Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, spoke in the debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Mr. Tanner was referring to a statement made in the House Wednesday by Elmer E. Roper, C.C.F. M.L.A. for Edmonton, and provincial leader of the C.C.F., who said that three oil companies in Turner Valley had made profits of $1,465,000 last year, after allowing for depreciation and depletion charges, and later stated that such properties should be legally expropriated and then developed for the people of Alberta.

At the conclusion of the minister's address, Mr. Roper rose in the House and said he wanted to correct the word "confiscation" Mr. Tanner had used. "I do not believe in confiscation," Mr. Roper said.

SAID "EXPROPRIATION"

Back-bench Social Credit members interjected that Mr. Roper had said "expropriation."

"The same thing!" they observed.

Mr. Tanner pointed out the need to encourage oil development in the province, and said that over a period of years, $18,000,000 more than had been returned to investors had been spent in the search for oil in Alberta.

"Nonsense!" Mr. Roper interjected.

Later, the minister replied to the C.C.F. member's criticism of the government oil policy, saying he

Inter-Trade Group To Meet March 13

Reg. T. Rose, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce announced Friday that the tentative dates for the meeting of the Alberta-British Columbia Inter-trade Committee at Vancouver are March 13 and 14.

Alberta representatives on the committee, A. M. MacDonald and Reg. T. Rose, Edmonton; G. Bessent, Grande Prairie and H. B. Macdonald and Eric D. McGreer, Calgary, as well as an invited representative of the department of trade and industry, will discuss several matters of importance to the two provinces.

The Alberta committee has suggested the following subjects for the meeting: development of comparative statistics to determine actual conditions in each province; legislation based on considerations of uniformity; taxation which will include proposals in the report of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce taxation committee; interprovincial roads and trade opportunities for the products of both provinces.

Nominated

M. D. Meade, who has been nominated as the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation candidate for the Wainwright constituency in the next provincial general election. He is the principal of the Wainwright High school, and holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Education from the University of Alberta.

Form Organization To Assist Women

The nucleus of an organization which will deal with the rehabilitation of women discharged from the armed forces and improvements of working conditions for women in the city, was formed last week when 25 women managers of female personnel in Edmonton's larger business establishments met with officials of the women's section of the local Selective Service office.

Mrs. Kate Lyons, head of the women's section of the local employment office said the organization was started with the idea of discussing methods of training and rehabilitating women who will be discharged from the services, and placing them in suitable employment.

It is hoped the organization will expand to embrace all women managers of female workers, and will result in exchange of ideas for improvement of working conditions, and the most efficient placement of all Edmonton women workers, Mrs. Lyons said.

Members will hear lectures on job placement, and job training and will study methods of rehabilitation of physically handicapped workers.

Election of officers for the organization will take place at the next meeting when each of the original members is asked to bring another member to enlarge the club.

Realtors to Meet

The Edmonton real estate association is holding a general meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms tonight.

THE QUESTION

Many of the things we do repeatedly become unconscious habits in our life. When you get dressed in the morning, do you always follow the same routine in dressing?

THE ANSWERS

JEAN BLANCHETT, waitress: I guess I do. In fact, I even go as far as always putting on my right shoe and stocking before my left and then continue with the rest of my dressing.

CARL SHOURA, machinist: I always shave before I put my shirt on. Sometimes when I change my dressing routine I always feel after I have dressed that I am not completely dressed. Dressing must be a habit, though, because I never even think of the way I am doing it.

• • •

SONIA LEISIEV, clerk: No, I never get dressed the same way twice. Sometimes I get all dressed before I put on my shoes, and sometimes I put my shoes on first.

Back from Overseas Duty, Nurse Finds City Strange

Edmonton looks a bit strange to Nursing Sister Lt. M. A. Bridges, wife of Capt. Charles Bridges, also of Edmonton, chemical engineer officer with the Canadian 1st Division overseas. Nursing Sister Bridges arrived back in Edmonton Thursday night after five years in the British Isles.

During her period of service with the No. 4 Casualty Clearing Station, R.C.A.M.C., in Britain she nursed the wounded from the Dieppe raid. The nurse met Capt. Bridges overseas. The latter is the son of Mrs. C. G. Bridges of the Harmony Apartments, Jasper avenue.

Nursing Sister Bridges was with a large number of Edmonton and district service personnel with the Canadian Army overseas who have returned to Canada for various reasons, and who arrived here on a late train from Calgary Thursday.

A majority of the returning men were back from Britain on sick leave. Several others are back for officers' training courses at Canadian Army centres, and wore the white shoulder flashes of officer cadets.

Hospitalized at Calgary was Pte. David Dougan of 12848 Fort Trail, first member of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment to be wounded in Sicily.

Struck in the head by shrapnel on July 10 last Pte. Dougan has been treated by the new wonder drug penicillin. The wound paralyzed his right side.

Pte. Dougan was married in England in 1941.

OTHERS FROM CITY

In addition to Nursing Sister Bridges, the following Edmontonians arrived at Calgary, enroute to Edmonton:

Lt. J. H. Budd, Sgt. R. C. Miquelon, Sgt. W. C. Pridmore, R.S.M. R. M. Hume, Ppr. A. S. MacNaughton, Pte. A. Gaudrey, Gnr. G. Turton, Gnr. L. R. Sheehan, Spr. A. R. Street, Pte. H. Swerdfeger, Cpl. D. M. Astles, L.-Cpl. G. J. Bryant, Gnr. I. Leighton, Pte. G. Norcutt and Pte. G. Pedersen.

The following are from Edmonton district:

Sgt. S. W. Harris, High Prairie; Pte. E. M. Sherk, Glendon; Pte. J. W. Barager, Thorsby; Pte. E. Kuhn, Carrot Creek; Cpl. W. R. Knight, Grande Prairie; Gnr. E. J. Crotteau Thorhild and Spr. R. L. Brass, Mayerthorpe.

R.S.M. N. K. Kirkham of Red Deer, of the 14th Army Tank Bn., saw action at Dieppe, Sicily and in Italy.

HIT NEAR CASSINO

A veteran of the First Great War, with two sons overseas, R.S.M. Kirkham was wounded near Cassino on Oct. 28. He left the train at Red Deer.

The returning personnel were welcomed again by members of the official welcoming committee, who distributed cigarettes and chocolate bars to all those detraining.

Consumption of Fuel Oil Shows Large Increase

During the year ended Dec. 31 last, fuel oil consumption in this province increased by 3,125,316 gallons over the 1942 figures, it was revealed in a report issued Friday by the provincial secretary's department.

Total of 81,387,708 gallons of taxable oil, including gasoline, was supplied to Alberta users during 1943. In this category is gasoline for automobiles and trucks, which is taxed at the rate of seven cents a gallon, and gasoline for agricultural purposes, which is colored purple, and is taxed one cent a gallon. The figures issued do not include those of fuel supplied to the armed forces' vehicles operating in the province.

USE BY MONTHS

Consumption of the fuel oil by months last year was as follows: January, 3,081,849 gallons; February, 3,375,270; March, 5,094,645; April, 5,224,698; May, 9,940,833; June, 8,543,450; July, 8,464,867; August, 8,559,457; September, 9,272,054; October, 8,045,162; November, 6,592,343; December, 5,193,080 gallons.

Figures show that the number of private passenger automobiles licensed in the province since last April 1 is nearly equal to the 1942 total of 92,700. Figures for truck licenses, while not released, are stated to be much increased over the 1942 figures.

Airmen Returning Home From Abroad

See Early End of Throne Speech Talk

Present indications point to conclusion of the throne speech debate in the Legislature at the beginning of next week, possibly Tuesday afternoon or evening, observers stated Friday.

The debate has been in progress since last Friday afternoon, and a total of 15 speakers have taken part, up until Thursday's adjournment. Friday, Angus Morrison, the Labor M.L.A. for Edson, was scheduled to speak in the debate, followed by LAC. Gordon E. Taylor, Social Credit M.L.A. for Drumheller, and D. J. McKinnon, Independent M.L.A. for Gleichen.

When the throne speech debate is finished, the way will be open for introduction of Hon. Solon E. Low's 1944-45 budget. It was thought possible this will be tabled in the House late next week. Ash Wednesday, Feb. 23, is a government holiday, and the House will not sit that day.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Wife "Cures" Nag Habit Thus Averts Trouble

If All Husbands Were Treated Like Star Boarders, Divorces Would Be Fewer, Homes Happier, And Life Brighter

DEAR MISS DIX: Please print this letter for other women to read because it tells how I cured myself of nagging. I am married to a good, kind, hard-working man who couldn't have been better than he has been to me and the children, but I badgered the life out of him by my whines and complaints and bossing because I thought I was always right about everything, and the principal thing in marriage was for me to be made happy.

Then, suddenly, one day when I was thinking about how disappointing marriage is I got his point of view on the situation, and I began wondering what HE thought about spending his life slaving for a woman who took all he gave her without thanks or appreciation, or making any effort to make him happy, and I marvelled that he had not walked out on me long ago.

From that minute I changed. I now treat him as a guest who can leave if things are not made pleasant for him. I don't order him about, or interfere with his personal liberty. I don't criticize everything he does, and I don't harp on his faults any more. In a word, I have quit nagging, and my husband is a changed man and our household is cheerful and pleasant, instead of being a place of strife.

A REFORMED WIFE.

Answer: The one fault that men object to in their wives more than anything else is nagging, and if any woman has found a way to stop wives from doing it, she is the world's greatest benefactor, for she will have done more than anyone else to stop divorce, prevent the wrecking of homes and the half-orphaning of helpless little children.

And the remedy is so simple. It is just to treat husband as if he were the star boarder, instead of a slave who had been thrown in along with a woman's wedding certificate and whom she didn't have to bother to even treat politely because she owned him body and soul and he couldn't help himself.

But you couldn't treat a guest, who could pack up and leave, that way, especially if he was a paying guest whose board furnished the money on which the house was run, and provided his landlady and her children with a pretty home to live in, good clothes, cars, trips, and all the things that go to make pleasant and comfortable living.

Any woman who had a boarder like that would give him the best room in the house, and she would never dream of making him give it up and go to sleep on the knotty couch in the living room when Mother comes for a nice, long visit. She would feed him on the fat of the land, instead of making him eat the kind of things she liked. She would cater to his tastes and his habits and yes-yes him when he expressed an opinion, instead of contradicting him and arguing with him over every trifle.

She would make him feel that he was a big shot, instead of a moran child who had to be told over and over again what to do and how to do it, because he did not have sense enough to think things out for himself. And she would dress up for him and try to make things pleasant for him. She would show appreciation of everything he did, instead of taking all of his kindness and consideration for her for granted.

So maybe, after all, the solution of the whole domestic problem is for wives to treat their husbands as star boarders, instead of just as Jones who pays the freight.

SCHOOL TEACHER

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a school teacher. Have taught for 20 years and have saved some money and can retire now if I care to do so. I have been going with a man for two years and lately we have talked of marriage. I hesitate because my fiance is of the shiftless type. He never thinks of the future. Never saves any money. Spends every dollar as fast as he makes it. In fact, he is always trying to borrow from me.

Do you think our marriage would be a success, or a failure?

WORRIED.

ANSWER: No, such a marriage would be a foreordained failure, because no thrifty wife can abide a husband who is a waster and a spender. Husbands have far more patience with extravagant wives than wives have with husbands who think that money is something to throw at the birds.

The financial question causes as many hot fights in the family circle as it does in Congress, even when the man brings home his pay envelope and is reasonably prudent about his expenditures, so it is inevitable that there should be a never-ending domestic war in those households in which the husband has holes in his pockets that no wife can sew up.

Perhaps husbands can have worse faults than wastefulness, but certainly they can have none more aggravating, or harder to put up with than to spend the money on foolishness that is needed at home for necessities. And we may well pity the wife who is married to a man who treats the crowd to champagne, instead of paying for the baby's milk, and who buys first edtiions when he can't pay the rent.

A man who borrows money of a woman, and particularly the money she earned by her own hard labor and self-denial, shows what manner of man he is, and what a poor, weak reed he would be to lean upon. Take the tip. Be warned in time. And say NO.

DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR MISS DIX: When my son married I was very happy over it, because I had always wanted a daughter and I thought I would get one in his wife. Hence I am deeply hurt because my new daughter-in-law refuses to call me Mother, and wants to know whether she shall call me Mrs. or by my Christian name. Should I let this make me unhappy? MRS. E. J. S.

ANSWER: No. Forget it. Don't let your broken dream build a barrier between you and your daughter-in-law. Hers is the loss, because she will never seem close to you as she would have if she claimed kin with you. When a girl marries she makes a great mistake when she does not identify herself with her husband's family.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON.—A letter came to me the other day, a part of which I want to give you. It expresses the feelings so many of us have in our hearts better than I could. "It seems to have been necessary for both my sons to give their lives in this war. I am willing, and able, to take it, if their deaths and those thousands of others who are dying far away from home, can be justified by a better and more equalized world when this war is over. If we get anything like the 'satus quo' or 'back to normalcy,' it can be nothing but a hideous waste."

Each one of us carries a responsibility toward the boys who have died and the boys who have lived and gone through these tragic years, because, as this friend of mine says, unless we have "a better and more equalized world," we will just be preparing for another generation to go through the same thing.

As I sit and go over the mail night after night, I notice more and more how women feel that their heartbreak is only justified if those whom they love need never again go through the horror and waste of war. We can not know whether we will always be able to have a peaceful world in the future, but we can lay the best foundations that our intelligence and unselfish thinking can possibly achieve. Then we may hope that the training which our young people receive and the environment in which they live, will make it possible for them to keep on building a world of peace.

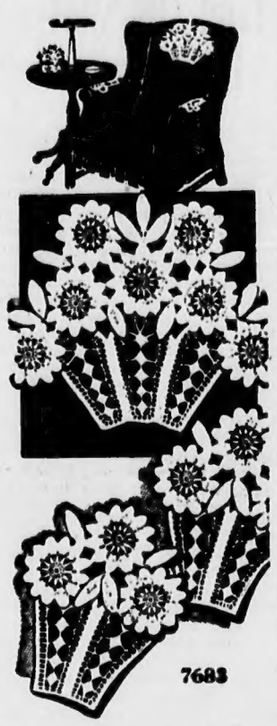

Yesterday morning and afternoon I spent several hours at a conference called under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association, the National Council of Catholic Women, the National Council of Jewish Women, the National Council of Negro Women, the National Council of Women of the United States and the National Women's Trade Union League of America. It was a national planning conference "on building better race relationships." The representatives there were trying to find ways and means which they could take back to their organizations for consideration. And techniques which might be used in different parts of the United States to prepare us to live in a world of neighbors made up of many different races were also to be studied.

I do not know how many of my readers see "The Red Cross Courier." But don't fail to read a short story by Annette Robin, called "We Meet the Missions," in the February issue. It will give you a vivid picture of the life of our fliers in far away New Guinea, and of what the Red Cross girls are accomplishing there. You won't read it with dry eyes, but if you are a woman, you will carry your head a little more proudly because of what other women are doing to help our gallant youngsters.

Debunker

There is a popular belief everywhere that Hitler studies the stars and consults expert astrologists regarding all of his political and military moves. This is all nonsense, journalists in Berlin tell us.

Hitler makes use of the best scientific methods for calculating the weather, bombing conditions, popular opinion and everything else vital to his success. He may study astrology as a personal hobby, but he certainly does not trust his deadly war plans to any such unscientific bunkum. Perhaps the world would be better off today if he had.

John Quincy Adams was the only bald-headed president of the United States.

McCoy Health Service

After inflammatory changes begin in the kidney as the result of Bright's Disease or chronic nephritis the kidneys lose their delicate, accurate power of selecting waste materials and will then begin to do their work backwards. They will throw out albumin which should be kept in the body, and will keep in water and waste materials which should be thrown out.

The retained water may produce dropsy or edema, which at first appears as a slight puffiness or swelling under the skin which may affect the ankles or area under the eyes. At the start the puffiness may come and go, but later it may remain. The skin over the dropsical part is stretched tight, has a pale, glossy look, and if pressed with the fingers, will remain indented. Dropsy, however, may not appear at all in Bright's Disease.

Some of the general symptoms which may be noted are: indigestion, dizziness, headache, rapid beating of the heart, a sallow, muddy complexion, a feeling of weakness, and a gradual loss of the ability to see well. The patient may undergo an intense itching of the skin.

One of the changes found when the liquid waste from the kidneys of a patient with nephritis is tested is the laboratory is the presence of albumin, often found in excessive amounts. This means that the kidney is longer doing properly its work of filtering, and is allowing albumin to flow through, when it should be holding it back. However, as albumin may be found in many other conditions, its mere presence does not prove that nephritis is the cause.

Suppose you have nephritis and your doctor has had you present a sample of kidney elimination for testing. You receive the report and probably sit down in a quiet corner and try to remember the explanation which the doctor gave you. You notice that the report mentions albumin, and that this finding has been checked in red ink. It was checked in this manner to tell your physician that here is something important about your case.

You may notice that casts were found, and here again the red ink is used. The presence of casts is likewise important because they indicate some irritation, congestion, or inflammation of the kidneys. In large amounts, hyaline casts are strongly suggested of nephritis.

Urea may be found in too small an amount, which means the kidney is not working efficiently in throwing this substance out of the body. The same may be true of uric acid. The specific gravity may be too low. The total amount of liquid passing through the kidneys may scanty, increased or stopped, depending upon what type of nephritis is present, and what stage it has reached.

I hope that the above information will be somewhat helpful to you in understanding what your report means. If the report shows an excess of albumin or too many casts, I strongly advise that you report to your physician for treatment.

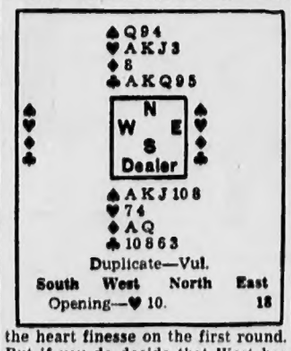

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

While I am showing only the North and South cards of today's hand, I think you will find it a very interesting combination of cards. I am going to tell you that there are four clubs to the jack in the East hand, and that South's contract is seven spades.

With the ten of hearts opening, I doubt that many players will take the heart finesse on the first round. But if you do decide that West has opened from the queen-ten of hearts, then all you have to do to make 13 tricks is to finesse the heart, ruff a diamond, and pick up the trumps. You will make five spades, three hearts, the ace of diamonds, a diamond ruff and three clubs.

One pair played this hand at seven no trump and now, of course, there was no way to ruff a diamond. But if you give West the king of diamonds and four or five hearts to the queen, you can develop a perfect squeeze on the West hand, so that the three of hearts will make the 13th trick.

Tomorrow I am going to give you this same hand again, and let me tell you in advance that East holds four trumps, four hearts to the queen, a singleton diamond and four clubs to the jack. Now do you think it is possible for South to make seven spades?

Complete Trek

MADRID, Feb. 18. — (AP) — One hundred and forty thousand peasants of German origin, ordered by the Nazis to evacuate their Black Sea homes in the face of the Russian advance, have completed a 1,600-mile trek across snow and ice. German newspapers received here reported.

THESE WOMEN!

"Did you ask if they were sheer?"

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mothers are always asking helplessly, "Well, then what SHALL I do when that imp of mine won't mind me? Shouldn't I spank him?"

That pops into mind only because spanking is such an easy punishment. It can be administered right when the parent is hot enough under the collar to make it a mighty satisfying thing to do. And it's something so dramatic and concrete that it is certain the little imp will be in no confusion about who is boss in this family.

All thinking persons know that sometime or another any parent is apt to break down and spank a child. Circumstances get too complex at times for her to forego the temptation. But just as surely no thinking person expects any miracles because of it. One or two spankings may jar the child's complacency and illustrate that he isn't the ruler of his universe. There are others who must be considered.

But, don't imagine that to follow this policy repeatedly is going to have any such salutary results. Far from it. The more a child is spanked the less obvious are the benefits. He gets used to being spanked. He builds up an emotion of revenge toward the parent who takes such advantage of his physical weakness. He is unmoved by it, but makes a loud noise, acts hurt and then proceeds to do exactly as he wants to do.

Boys get more spankings than girls who are sensitive and react more violently to physical pain. But neither boys nor girls are persuaded to an acceptance of better conduct just because a parent is agile with the hair-brush.

Try to find one incorrigible youth who hasn't had more than his share of corporal punishment. Did it make him better? You know the answer.

Children do need punishment. But the milder the punishment the more effective it is, since mild punishments reflect what it is necessary to illustrate repeatedly to every child; his behavior is undesirable but his parents approve of him as a person. They cannot put across such a message when they land upon him brutally in order to cause him pain. No physical assault upon his person will convince him his parents really love him.

Our leaflet, "Undesirable Punishments," enumerates the reasons why certain punishments work to promote not inhibit misbehavior. You may have it by sending a 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope together with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Minute Make-Ups

You will be wanting to wear pink this spring! So you must be "in the pink" with complexion accents. A dusting of pink powder over your skin-tone shade does things for you. Rose-pink lipstick and cheek rouge are in harmony. A sheer pink veil provides the gay note!

The diamond got its name from the Greek "Adamas," meaning "the unconquerable."

Leading "Warrior"

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. — (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has been chosen the outstanding world warrior of 1943 by the Indian Confederation of America, Chief Paul Horn, Keeper of Wampum, announced yesterday.

Reveal U-Boat Attacked Port

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 18.—(CP)—The story of how a small Nova Scotia vessel on special war duty saved several merchant ships during an attack upon a Newfoundland port by a German submarine several months ago was told here last night after it was learned an award had been made her skipper, Capt. Clayton L. Guy.

According to reports, Capt. Guy opened fire on the U-boat when it surfaced in the port and torpedoed and sank one ship. The fire from the Bluenose vessel forced the enemy to withdraw before getting a chance to attack the four other ships nearby.

Capt. Guy last November was commended by the Dominion government for service against the enemy, but details of the action were not revealed. He has been awarded a bronze medal oak leaf cluster.

Plan Greatest Air Umbrella For Invasion

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding the United States Army Air Forces, said last night that "for the invasion of Europe we will need—and we will have—the greatest aerial umbrella ever assembled in any war."

Speaking before the American Arbitration association, he added:

"Germany may shoot the works. Germany will throw up every plane she has to stop us, but it won't do any good.

'For we will keep going in spite of them — in spite of losses. We can be confident of outcome of this mass assault on the European fortress."

The general declared that in 1944 the poundage of planes produced by the United States would be 60 per cent above that produced in 1943. The gain will represent both an increase in the number of planes and the average weight per plane, he said.

Ration Is Lifted on Canned Blueberries

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—The prices board last night announced canned blueberries have been removed temporarily from the list of rationed fruits, effective immediately. However, after July 1 coupons again will be required. The announcement said large stocks have still to be disposed of before fresh fruit appears on the market in quantity.

Mrs. Wm. Ross Talks to Women

Speaking to 50 women at a special women's meeting on Thursday afternoon in the Salvation Army Citadel, 102 street, Mrs. William Ross of Toronto, said that more Christian homes should be opened these days, to men and women in uniform, and young war brides.

"These young people," she said, "have in most cases, come from good Christian homes. When they move to a new city where they know hardly a soul, they are apt to get in with the wrong crowd, and forget the religion, good conduct and manners taught to them at school and in their homes.

"These young people are to carry on in our places in the future, and they are our responsibility."

Mrs. Ross, who is the former Miss Sadie Stevenson of Edmonton, told the women of her experiences while travelling through Canada.

PAYS TRIBUTE

She paid high tribute to an elderly Salvation Army woman in Nova Scotia. Although 103 years of age, this woman was an active member of the Red Shield Auxiliary, and took a keen interest in life. Mrs. Ross added for a bit of humor, that the little old lady lived with her two sons, one in his 70's and the other in his 80's, whom she called "the boys."

The speaker told briefly of Mrs. Brigadier H. Dray who is in charge of one of the big hostess houses in Kingston. Mrs. Dray, although her husband died a short time ago, and she has three children to bring up, is continuing with her work, thus helping the war effort, and bringing comfort, and the peace of religion to those affected by the war. Mrs. Dray's duty is to give rooms and food to servicemen and their wives. She also offers her assistance in any little way she can, to those young couples who are together for a brief time before the young man embarks for overseas.

Mrs. Ross will be in Edmonton for another ten days.

Mrs. Brig. R. Raymer presided and introduced the speaker.

Paris Designs Still "Tops"

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Paris originals, which New York designer Elsa Higgins said left Vichy, France, in a neutral diplomat's trunk last year, were being shown here today.

There are only six dresses in the collection, but they show that despite restrictions imposed by the Nazis, designers of the French capital are striving to keep their places in the fashion sun.

The dresses were shown by Mrs. Higgins, owner of a New York salon, who said they were purchased by the wife of a South American diplomat from such establishments as Maggy Rouff, Charels Montaigne and Robert Piquet. Mrs. Higgins explained that she had permission from the owner to make copies and adaptations.

Each dress, unmistakably stamped "Paris" in its fine detail and painstaking workmanship, showed in some way the difficulties under which the designers are working. But except for a sports dress, the costumes used more material than American designers and manufacturers are permitted under government regulations.

One evening dress was lavishly made of heavy, pure black satin, with an equally fine peace satin peplum and bustle, but it was fastened at the back with a long slide fastener—of brown.

Knitting Club Run by H.R.H.

BY HELEN BANNERMAN

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—When Princess Alice inspects work of the Red Cross and other women's groups knitting and sewing for the services, she knows at first hand their problems of expense and effort.

Knitting is one of Her Royal Highness' hobbies. When she came to Canada in 1940 as wife of the Governor-General she organized a Tuesday afternoon "work party" for women connected with Government House and wives of staff members. The "work party" is suspended during the summer months but Princess Alice knits all year—both at home and on official tours.

Nearly 1,000 garments from baby buntings to seamen's long stockings have come from the Tuesday afternoons. Some of the party sew and some knit. Princess Alice herself makes the stockings.

The "work party" is a cheerful one. Her Royal Highness, who can knit and read at the same time reads aloud to the group of 20 or so. The books she chooses are either topical or amusing, and Paris Underground is the present choice. During the fall she read London Pride by Phyllis Bottome, and Our Hearts Were Young and Gay by Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough.

The knitters and sewers included Lady Redfern and Mrs. F. L. C. Pereira, wives of the Governor-General's two secretaries; Miss Vera Grenfell, Princess Alice's lady-in-waiting; wives of other staff members, and maids and cooks. Special duties keep some of them away occasionally, but Tuesday afternoon appointments are avoided for both Her Royal Highness and the women of the household.

Mlle. F. Boutet, the Princess's maid, is in charge of issuing wool supplies and keeps a record of all work done and where it is sent.

Garments regularly go to the navy auxiliaries and to the Comite Anglo-Francais de l'Oeuvre d'Assistance aux Refugies Francais en Angleterre (The Anglo-French Committee for Assistance to French refugees in England), affiliated with the French Red Cross of which Princess Alice is honorary patroness. Socks and pullovers go to the R.C.A.F. and Red Cross. Women's and children's clothes go to the Institut Jeanne d'Arc in Ottawa.

When an appeal came in 1940 from the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence for clothing an other aid, Princess Alice's party was one of the groups of Canadian women which responded. Baby clothes formed the greater part of bales sent to the islanders, with socks and men's and women's sweaters making up the rest.

WOMAN OUTSMARTS FACETIOUS M.P.

GLASGOW.—(CP)—Willie Gallacher, Communist member of parliament, and Socialist member A. Sloan, arrived at a Glasgow station and showed their parliamentary railway passes to the woman ticket-taker. "What," she asked, "does M.P. stand for?" "Military Police," said Gallacher facetiously, "Well," replied the woman, "you're the funniest military police I've ever seen."

THIS AIRWOMAN SERVES AT SEA

Life on the rolling wave is hardly what a girl expects when she joins the R.C.A.F., but Leading Airwoman Beryl Trewhitt of Yama, B.C., has a sea-going career in the Women's Division. She left the W.D. Precision Squadron for an equipment course at St. Thomas, Ont., and was posted to the Pacific Coast where her job is "loose equipment" check in big amphibious aircraft floating at sea. On the job, she wears the blue slacks and parka of airwomen's "protective clothing," and tops the ensemble with an orange "Mae West" life preserver—just in case. So far it has been an unnecessary precaution, for which she thanks her tree-climbing experiences gained picking apples in the Okanagan. The sure-footedness she acquired then is a big help stepping from dinghy to aircraft when the waves run high. On rough days her work calls for sea-worthiness, and Beryl reports with pride that she seems to be a good sailor.

Canadian Airwomen at British Bomber Station Work Long, Hard

By MARGARET ECKER

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN BRITAIN, Feb. 18.—(CP)—The Lancaster bomber, like a black creature of the night, sped down the runway and seeemd to hang without motion for a second before it was airborne.

Then it was aloft, a black ascending silhouette with a bright tail light—and the target for tonight was Germany.

The Canadian airwoman was tired. Since early morning on this R.C.A.F. bomber station she and many dozen other R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) members, with the men on the station had been winding up the machinery that puts a major air operation into the skies.

HAS PLAYED PART

And when a W.D. stands on the sidelines of the flying field in the black coldness of a midwinter night to watch the bombers take off, she knows that her job, no matter how small, has played a part in putting the planes into the air, whether she's an intelligence officer or a messwoman.

That morning before the raid, the atmosphere in the control tower down by the flying field was electric. Up in the operations room Cpl. Zella Stade of Powell River, B.C., a watch-keeper, studied a map on the wall where the flying route the bombers would take would soon be marked.

Zella was carrying on the secrets of the night's operation in her pretty, curly head.

"Yes, I guess we know more about the raid than even the aircrews," she said. "We're the first to know the takeoff time, the target and the route, as soon as the information comes from air ministry."

"And that means a lot of work for us," Cpl. Dorothy Wakefield of Vancouver looked up from some charts long enough to say. "We have to keep track of such things as the number of the aircraft and pilots serviceable.

WORKING HARD

In another building, in the code of cypher office, Sgt. Judy Jackson of Minnedosa, Man., was obviously working hard. "I can't say what I'm doing," she said. "We cypher and decypher messages between bomber command and air ministry," was all she could say, but through her hands, even as she talked, was probably passing important information regarding the night's operations.

"25 Club" Canvass Obtaining Results

Mrs. H. B. Porteous, of the Women's Volunteer Bureau, reported Friday that the "25 Club" house-to-house canvassing campaign launched on Feb. 14 has brought an unexpectedly large response to the efforts of the 600 to 700 volunteer women canvassers.

In some sections of the city canvassers were getting more pledges signed than they anticipated.

The campaign will be extended until the entire city has been covered.

Membership in the "25 Club" consists of pledging to buy one 25 cent war saving stamp each week. The pledges will be followed up by authorized war finance collectors who will call every week.

THE PAUL REVERE 2-18

See Reasons For Vatican "Attacks"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Foreign Policy Association yesterday described Soviet press criticism of the Vatican as reflecting "the heightened tension of a country which for three years has been engaged in a life and death struggle, and does not intend to let anyone or anything stand in the way" of terminating this struggle victoriously.

The association, a private research organization, reviewed in its weekly bulletin the controversy precipitated by the Moscow publication Izvestia's assertion on Feb. 1 that the Vatican foreign policy has disillusioned Catholics and "earned the hatred and contempt of the Italian masses for supporting Fascism."

The bulletin article, prepared by Vera Micheles Dean, noted that Izvestia linked its allegations to a report, "Foreign Policy of the Vatican," published by the Foreign Policy Association Jan. 15, and commented that Izvestia must have relied on newspaper reviews of the report rather than the full text.

Maintenance Unit Is Given Credit For Air Successes

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Maintenance Command is one of the lesser known branches of the R.A.F.—even to members of the service—but it is largely responsible for the successes achieved by bomber, fighter and coastal commands of the air forces overseas.

It is the "Woolworth's" of the air force, stocking everything from spare parts for aircraft down to socks for airmen. Maintenance Command handles 750,000 different items—one of the largest chain stores in Britain handles only 35,000 different items.

An idea of the size of the Command's task can be gained from the fact it receives more than 1,000 railway wagon loads of material to handle each day. Daily demands from units for various items exceed 60,000.

Charge Perjury

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP)—Judge Samuel Leizowitz' hold-over January grand jury yesterday indicted Mrs. Eina Hancock, 31, on a charge of first degree perjury concerning testimony against Murray Goldman, 31, whose conviction on a charge of attempting to rape her was set aside by Judge Leibowitz after a lie detector test.

Before the Magistrate

Mack Pilip, found guilty of dangerous driving by Magistrate A. I. Milar, K.C., in city police court Friday, was fined $15 or 21 days. On a second count, of driving without a driver's license, he was assessed $2 or four days, terms to run consecutively.

Paul Suvan, Edmonton, charged with being in possession of stolen property valued at more than $600, was remanded for one week to enable him to find the man to whom he loaned $40 on a vulcanizing outfit, three tire spreaders, an air compressor, battery and steam boiler. The equipment, the court was told, was taken from Love's service station March 23, 1943.

William C. King, charged with theft, was fined $20 or 30 days. The accused came to the city from the north country which he "didn't like because it was so far away," he told the magistrate.

Fifteen motorists had fines or terms of imprisonment imposed on them, Thursday afternoon, by Magistrate Harold L. Hawe, K.C., in R.C.M.P. traffic court.

Ten of the accused were fined $10 or 15 days on charges of driving over the legal limit, while another driver paid the same amount for driving when not the holder of an Alberta license. Penalties of $5 or seven days were imposed on three others for operating without a chauffeur's license, or failure to set out flares, or for failure to stop before entering a highway.

One offender was assessed $2 or three days for driving without a license, while another, who had no clearance lights on his truck, was fined $3 or five days. The latter vehicle was not owned by the driver, the magistrate was told, but Mr. Hawe welcomed the owner, who said he would pay.

Bottlers Hold Annual Meeting: Name Officers

With a large and representative attendance present from eight different places in the province, the annual meeting of Alberta Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages was held Wednesday in the Jasper room of the Macdonald Hotel. W. R. Evans, Canada Dry Ginger Ale Limited, Edmonton, and president of the organization, was in the chair.

Arrangements for the annual meeting were completed by T. Ashenhurst, secretary, in co-operation with members of the Executive Committee.

At the business session the annual address of the president, the secretary's report, report of the treasurer, amendments to the constitution and bylaws, and the election of officers, were dealt with. The election of officers resulted in the following being elected:

President, W. R. Evans, Canada Dry Ginger Ale Ltd., Edmonton; secretary treasurer, T. Ashenhurst, Edmonton.

The executive committee is as follows: J. B. Cross, Calgary Brewing and Malting Co., Ltd., Calgary; B. Pearlman, Polar Aerated Water Works Limited, Calgary; B. Margolis, Dominion Bottling Works Limited, Edmonton; J. A. Price, Purity Bottling Works, Lethbridge; R. E. Haworth, National Fruit Company, Medicine Hat; R. V. Truant, Red Deer Bottling Company, Red Deer.

Mr. Evans was re-elected as Alberta director to the national board of Canadian Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages.

Mr. Cross, the president, Calgary Brewing and Malting Co., Limited, continues as the representative on the advisory board of the soft drink industry, appointed by the Dominion government.

OPEN DISCUSSION

Mr. Cross addressed the meeting briefly. Under the heading "new business" provision was made for a full and open discussion on matters of interest to the carbonated beverage industry in Alberta.

Reports submitted at the meeting showed that members of A.B.C.B. in every part of the province are lending most active support in the campaign of the food products industry, to further the sale of War Savings Stamps.

CO-OPERATED

In his address Mr. Evans stressed the value of co-operation and thanked all who had given him such splendid support. He outlined various activities of the organization. He pointed out that "Our principal restriction at present is governed by the rationing of sugar which we are permitted to use, being 80 per cent of 1941. Of course, should sugar be released in any great quantity, the soft drink industry would immediately feel the pinch on other supplies, such as crowns."

He also said that "Bottlers of carbonated beverages in Alberta, during the year have done everything possible for the conservation of labor, rubber, gasoline and materials for the manufacture of their products."

FRIENDLY CONTACT

Mr. Ashenhurst stated that close and friendly contact had been maintained by correspondence during the past year, with officials of Canadian Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages, and with the various provincial organizations throughout the Dominion.

Solos were given during the evening by Jack Williams, accompanied by Dennis Clayton.

War films with sound effects entitled "These are the men," and "Train Busters," were featured.

Guests included J. A. Christiansen, chairman, Edmonton branch Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and a number of members from the same organization.

King, Queen Pay Beaver Club Visit

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Canada's famed Beaver Club had a surprise for its fourth birthday party yesterday. The King and Queen spent an hour walking around the club just off Trafalgar Square and talking with many Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen. The club, best-known Canadian services club in London, was crowded for the anniversary and hundreds of Canadians saw Their Majesties during the visit.

TODAY'S MARKETS

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—(CP)—The price tendency was downward on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Industrials and golds were inclined to recover a bit in the late afternoon but the come-back was not vigorous enough to erase early losses.

Rye Futures Show Further Weakness

WINNIPEG, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Rye futures displayed further weakness today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with heavy early liquidation from United States interests and commission houses meeting indifferent support. Declines at Chicago influenced the lower trend here.

Prices ralied fractionally later in the session on fair buying by commission houses and elevators and closed from one to 1⅛ cents lower. Futures closed May 124⅞, July 123b, October 121⅛a.

While offerings appeared liberal towards the close of the session a stronger tone on the southern market aided the upturn here.

No other important grain dealings were reported today.

Chicago's Wheat Rallies at Close

CHICAGO, Feb. 18—(AP)—After declining about a cent during early trading, wheat reversed its trend today and came back to around previous closing levels. Some of the buying was for a large elevator concern. Oats also were able to rally substantially but rye displayed a persistently weak undertone.

Weather reports were highly favorable for development of the winter wheat crop. Wheat seeded in the dust in Western Kansas has now sprouted and in Oklahoma wheat is now furnishing some pasturage, according to trade reports. The bulk of the main winter wheat belt is protected by a snow blanket.

At the close wheat was unchanged to ⅜ lower, oats were unchanged to ⅛ down, rye was ⅛-1⅝ lower and barley was up ⅛-⅜.

Wheat: May 1.68⅝, July 1.65⅛, Sept. 1.63¼, Dec. 1.63⅝.

Oats: May 78⅞, July 75¼-⅛, Sept. 72⅛, Dec. 73.

Rye: May 1.25-1.25⅛, July 1.24-1.24⅛, Sept. 1.22¾-½, Dec. 1.23⅝.

Tanner Opposes Plan to Seize Oil Properties

had claimed in his address Wednesday that the oil companies were making all the profits. Mr. Tanner said he wondered if Mr. Roper felt that persons holding grazing and other leases were also taking money from the province.

PROFIT "NOT WRONG"

"It is not wrong to make a profit, if it is in line with what it should be," Mr Tanner went on.

He said the people of the province were entitled to know how far Mr. Roper wished to go, in socializing Alberta, and it was time this question was cleared up.

"Does he want an answer now?" Mr. Roper instantly queried.

"No!" several Social Credit M.L.A.'s replied.

"Don't get excited," one member retorted.

When control of the province's natural resources passed from the Dominion to Alberta in 1930, more than half of the oil lands had been granted to large companies, such as the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Hudson's Bay Company, and others, Mr. Tanner said. This had been done in the years before the resources were transferred.

The province was unable to impose royalties on these properties, which the companies had obtained from the Dominion. However, the province, in recent years, has imposed a mineral tax on the properties, to get some revenue from them for the people.

REFERS TO REMARK

The minister made reference to a remark by J. T. Broomfield, Independent M.L.A. for Okotoks-High River, who spoke of increased royalty payments imposed by the government.

"The member for Okotoks-High River said we were making too much. Now the member for Edmonton (Mr. Roper) says we are not getting our fair share."

Mr. Tanner then said he was not taking a stand for the large oil companies, ar that he was opposed to monoplies over which private individuals held control.

He told of action of the British Columbia government, which had acted upon the advice of well-known geologists, and had spent nearly $600,000 in a search for oil. Large companies have searched for oil in this province, and have not been successful, and one American company had expended more than $500,000 in a fruitless search, it was recalled.

When companies take great risks, an incentive must be provided for them to come in, and a certain fair profit should be allowed, Mr. Tanner told the House.

Regarding the search for oil, and suggestions as to legal confiscation of oil companies, the minister said that a Socialist government would have no better way of finding the presence of oil than that known to geologists of North America. He pointed out that $18,000,000 more had been expended in the search for oil, than was returned to investors.

CAN TAX COMPANY

If a company is making too large a profit, and some may be doing this, the government can tax the company, said the minister. "Royalties and rentals can be increased, but no confiscation," he stated.

Companies that took leases agreed to pay the 10 per cent royalty, and any other royalties the government might set, and to abide by changes in regulations. The royalty has been increased from 10 per cent to 12½ per cent by the government, as it was felt a fair return was not being received, Mr. Tanner said.

Although Turner Valley has produced much oil, the house was told the Alberta oil industry is still in its infancy.

"We want to encourage development. The companies must be given fair treatment, while we are looking after the people's interests, Mr. Tanner stated. He added, "We are determined to regulate the industry."

Oil conservation legislation as referred to in the Speech from the Throne was mentioned by the minister, who said wastage could not be justified, in any place where it could be stopped. The purpose of conservation legislation to be brought into the House was explained, and the whole Turner Valley situation was discussed.

The minister said it has been impossible for other producers of gas to get into the market, except through the Royalite company. He stated that all producers should share rateably in the market.

LUMBER INDUSTRY

With reference to the lumber industry, Mr. Tanner said some companies held berths which had been granted by the Dominion government as far back as 1880 and 1890, and these were held at low "stumpage" rates.

He recalled that the province had increased these rates, and that the question went before the Privy Council. This body's judgment upheld the province's action in increasing the rates, and gave authority to increase royalties and rentals and to change regulations.

Mr. Tanner made reference in his address to coyote bounty systems which had been proposed previously, but had been rejected by certain municipalities, and certain sheep breeder associations.

He announced a new coyote bounty plan, under which the province is to guarantee $5 for each pelt sent in, whether from a pup, or a male or female animal, and whether in prime or not.

If the pelt is worth more than $5, Mr. Tanner said, the person who caught the animal would get whatever it would bring, but no bounty money as well. If the pelt was worthless, the province would nevertheless pay the $5 guarantee.

PROGRAM APPROVED

"If the Municipality or Sheep Breeders' Associations want to add to that bonus, they can do it," the minister went on. "This program has been approved by the sheep breeders and by representatives of municipalities. We recognize the seriousness of the situation."

The House was told that since its last session, fish and game advisory boards have been established, to assist the fish and game branch of the department of lands and mines, and all regulations and amendments to Acts are now scrutinized by these boards and approved by them.

Mr. Tanner said it was hoped to set up laboratories in the near future to inquire into the causes of fish infestation, which he said has been the subject of some complaint in the case of fish which is being sent out of the country.

"It is causing some concern in our local and export markets," the minister stated, and said his department was now co-operating with the other prairie governments, in an effort to determine infestation causes. Representatives of the three provinces have already met over the problem, and plan to meet the Dominion government shortly, in the hope that laboratory facilities can be set up in which to commence research work.

IS NOT HARMFUL

"Infestation is not harmful to persons who eat affected fish," Mr. Tanner told the House. "But," he added, "it is not desirable to anyone to know they are eating infested fish."

In spite of all the province's natural resources, and in spite of all we do or can do, the people cannot enjoy the fruits of them, said the minister. "Why not?" he asked.

"We have heard arguments regarding this from this side of the House before."

"I was shocked to understand from the speech of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition (James Walker, Independent M.L.A. for Warner) that there is nothing fundamentally wrong with our economic system," said Mr. Tanner.

"As far as I am concerned, there is something fundamentally wrong.

"When people say nothing is fundamentally wrong, they are forgetting the pre-war period. I say it is my responsibility, and the responsibility of every member of this house, if we realize there is something fundamentally wrong, we should do something about it.

"It is our responsibility to work together, Mr. Tanner concluded, "so that when our men come home, they can say to us, 'well done'."

GAS SITUATION

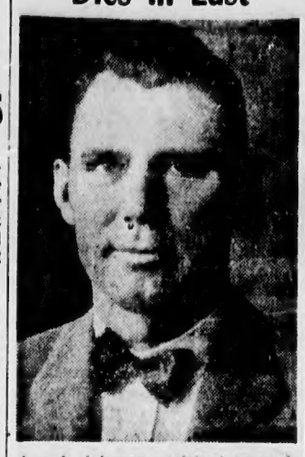

When the minister sat down, George MacLachlan, Independent whip from Pembina constituency, asked the minister if he could say anything about the prospects of the gasoline situation for farmers this year. A shortage existed in parts of the province last year, Mr. MacLachlan said.

"That is a matter over which I have no control," said Mr. Tanner.

"Can you give us any idea of the situation?" Mr. MacLachlan asked.

"I cannot," Mr. Tanner replied.
